NAZIS SAY ALLIES ENCIRCLED, START AIR RAIDS ON ENGLAND

Bombers Begin Blitzkrieg On British Isles

245-Mile Area on England's East Coast Strafed Before Sirens Can Sound Blackout Warnings; English Claim Little Damage.

By WALLACE CARROLL
(UP Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—German airplanes bombed a 245-mile area along the east coast of England today in what many believed might be the prelude to an early blitzkrieg on the British Isles by air and sea.

Damage was slight, it was indicated, and casualties—the first in England in a deliberate bombing—were few.

The bombed area extended from the North Riding of Yorkshire, the northern part of that rich industrial county, to Essex, at the mouth of the Thames.

Arriving over the east coast in the early morning hours, the German raiders began dropping bombs before air raid sirens could sound warnings.

They dropped bombs in Yorkshire, in East Anglia, the old kingdom of the Angles which includes Norfolk and Suffolk, and Essex to the south.

Eleven men were known wounded in the Yorkshire North Riding, and a girl was wounded in a coastal Yorkshire town.

Bombs dropped for half an hour in East Anglia. There were several explosions on the outskirts of one East Anglian town. Two cottages were damaged slightly in a rural East Anglia area.

The air ministry admitted that "some" damage had been done in the North Riding. In that area one bomb fell on a vacant building and shattered windows in the vicinity.

Of the bombs dropped in Essex, striking at a small town, one fell in a garden and another shattered windows of two cottages. Damage was reported slight and it was said there were no casualties.

Although today's casualties were the first in England in a deliberate German bombing, a man had been killed in Scotland in March during a raid on Scapa Flow and two civilians had been killed and 150 wounded when a German mine-laying plane crashed in flames on the English southeast coast a month ago.

Air raid alarm was sounded early in the morning along the east coast. People took to shelter and British fighter planes went up to meet the invaders.

Farther south, people watched a gigantic fire which burned in the Boulogne-Calais area and listened to the rumble of gun fire as British warships shelled the coastal road between Boulogne and Calais.

Admiralty authorities refused information but refugees reported that Allied warships were shelling the outskirts of Boulogne and that German artillery was blasting away at the warships.

It was indicated that the road under fire was a secondary one

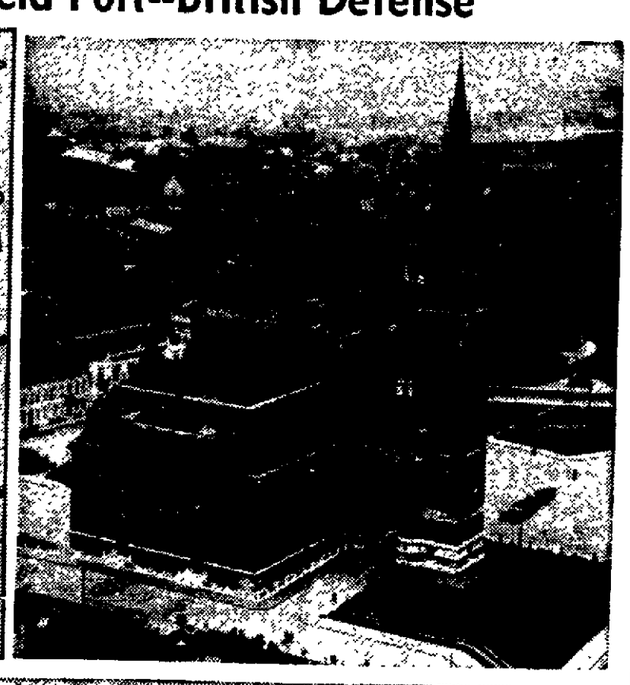
Allied Pincer--Nazi-Held Port--British Defense



Top left, map shows German pincer attack on French English and Allied pincer attack, which strives to link two Allied forces and cut off Nazi forces in Flanders. Ring Tightened About Flanders Defense Troops

Germans Claim 'Weak' Counter-Attacks Have Been Repelled; Vimy Ridge Captured by Invaders; Many Prisoners Taken.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN — The Belgian army, the main body of the British Expeditionary Force and parts of France's first, seventh and ninth armies have been solidly ringed on the Flanders plains, the German high command announced today, and "weak" Allied attacks to relieve them have been repelled.

An "increasing" number of Allied prisoners from this trapped force, which has been estimated at between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men, are being engulfed in this major envelopment, it was said, and "the amount of booty cannot be estimated."

The high command declared that the Lys river, Belgium's last natural line of defense, had been crossed; Ghent and Courtrai, Belgium, captured; the French channel port of Boulogne wrested from land and naval forces, and nearby Calais encircled.

Vimy Ridge, death-hallowed battleground of Canadian and German forces in the World war, was reported captured in the general action along the southern edge of the German salient to the sea where the Germans said they had beaten back "weak enemy relief attacks."

"Vimy Ridge between Lillers and St. Omer up to Gravelines is in German possession," said the daily high command communique.

The capture of Boulogne and the threat at the gates of Calais advanced the threat of direct attack on England, for they lie only 26 and 22 miles, respectively, from the Folkestone-Dover coast.

Germans have said, however, that occupation of the narrowing area of southwestern Belgium and northwestern France—the sack of territory upon which the Nazis are pulling the drawstring—is a necessary prelude to any jump-off toward the English shore.

"The ring around the Belgian army, units of the first, seventh and ninth French armies and the main body of the English expeditionary force, was considerably increased and thereby definitely closed," said the high command's review of yesterday's operations.

Britain Clamps Firm Ban On Details of Fighting

LONDON—(AP)—Britain today clamped a firm ban on details of the fighting in France where the British expeditionary force was struggling "in a very grave and very confused" position.

Prime Minister Churchill, urging the labor unions to a supreme effort in behalf of the country, declared the gravity of the situation was deepening "hour by hour."

Although details were lacking the government permitted this information to reach the public:

The Royal Air Force and the fleet's air arm had harassed German troops concentrating near the coast of the English channel, putting out of action at least three tanks. RAF bombers had fired enemy oil tanks at Rotterdam and sunk a German torpedo boat in part of their regular night-long operations.

British military circles said the French high command had requested secrecy on the locations of fighting until a battle had been decided, and that the ban on news was likely to continue indefinitely.

DUBLIN—Eire police launched a nation-wide search today for "fifth column" suspects following the presentation of sensational courtroom evidence indicating that at least one German parachutist landed recently near Dublin.

(In Belfast, northern Ireland, three Royal Air Force officers were shot and wounded when airport guards mistook them for German parachutists. The attack occurred as the three aviators drove past an airdrome in Ulster.)

Authorities jailed Stephen Carroll Held, a prosperous metal manufacturer, after a special military court decided the possibility that he aided the German parachutist in espionage activities was worthy of further investigation.

Held's home near Dublin was raided by police who found important code documents, a used open parachute and portions of a German military uniform in a room, it was charged in the court by Prosecuting Attorney Richard McLoughlin. A box containing $20,000 in United States currency also was discovered.

The prisoner denied the allegations, but police were instructed to be on the lookout for foreigners as well as a chauffeur who worked for Held and disappeared with his master's car shortly before the house was raided.

READY: Italy Waits Only For Duce to Press War Button

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Geared for war, her entire resources subject to conscription under a new civil mobilization order, Italy is ready today for Premier Mussolini to press the button that could plunge her into the European conflict as an ally of Germany.

All signs indicated that the move might not be long in coming.

Among the ominous indications, topped by passage of the civil mobilization decree were:

1. Reports that additional classes of army and naval reserves had been called to the colors.

2. Postponement of the sailings of three big transatlantic liners—which might possibly serve as troop transports.

3. Intensified blackout preparations.

4. Rumors that Il Duce had rejected Allied concessions—including relaxation of the Mediterranean blockade—offered in the hope of keeping Italy on the sidelines.

5. Increasingly bitter press attacks on the Allies and new anti-Allied street demonstrations.

Many foreigners, including English residents, quietly prepared to leave the country. Those who had booked passage on Italian vessels now tied to their docks hastened to transfer their passage to American vessels.

The new civil mobilization decree was hastily rushed through the senate last night. A full week ahead of schedule, giving the government power to mobilize all citizens over the age of 14 and requisition the services of private capital, industry, labor groups and transportation systems.

DETAINED: American Embassy Employe Arrested In London

(By United Press)

LONDON—An employe of the American embassy was reported under arrest today and the former counselor of the Austrian legation was known to be under detention in a "fifth column" round-up which extended to all of Ireland and brought reports that the terroristic "Irish Republican Army" had planned an uprising this week-end.

American embassy officials disclaimed knowledge of the reported arrest of one of the members of their staff, admitting only that they had heard the report of the arrest.

Other well informed sources said that no "officer" of the embassy was involved and pointed out that the embassy employed several hundred persons including Britons.

The home office said only that it had no information and could not discuss the reported arrest.

Adolf Charles Kunz, who was counselor of the Austrian legation until Adolf Hitler seized his country in March, 1938, was seized yesterday in Scotland Yard's fifth column round-up in the British Isles.

Rising British feeling against suspected fifth columnists was believed to have been registered during the night when the Communist party hall at Bellshire, in Lanarkshire, Scotland, was damaged by an explosion. There were no casualties.

OK'S FUNDS FOR W. 4TH PAVING

Votes Unanimous Approval of $48,000 Appropriation to Finance Street Job.

Meeting in special session for the second time within five days, city council this noon cleared the way for the reconstruction of West Fourth street. It gave unanimous approval to an appropriation of $48,000 to finance the city's share of the cost of the improvement.

The measure, one of five pieces of legislation authorizing the state to proceed with the repaving job, received eight affirmative votes and was signed immediately by Mayor William J. Locke.

The special meeting had been called to re-consider the measure which was turned down Tuesday night lacking one of the required affirmative votes.

POPPIES 'BLOOM'

Scouts Sell Flowers in Annual Legion Auxiliary Activity.

Few Mansfielders in the downtown district today escaped the persuasive salesmanship of Boy Scouts who were on the streets bright and early to sell memorial poppies for the American Legion auxiliary.

More than 10,000 of the little scarlet flowers had been sold up to noon today, including those that were sold through the factories earlier this week. Today is Poppy Day throughout the nation.

This afternoon the Scouts were joined by the Junior Girls of the auxiliary.

The quota for McVey Post was 12,000. Mrs. Howard Neuman, general chairman, said the remaining 2,000 flowers would probably be sold this afternoon. Money derived from the sale is used for child welfare and veteran rehabilitation.

Defense Council Plan Revived By Roosevelt

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, it was learned reliably today, has decided to revive the "council of national defense"—in World war a board of six cabinet officers and seven civilian experts—to co-ordinate and speed up the nation's extraordinary $3,297,011,352 defense program.

Mr. Roosevelt, an informed authority said, already has compiled a list of names from which council members may be chosen, but the identity of the men on the list is a closely guarded secret. Administration aides have been studying an enabling statute, dating back to 1916, to determine what revisions in it may be necessary.

The word that a defense council was likely coincided with forewarnings of a senate drive to expand the navy's air arm far beyond the limits suggested in President Roosevelt's emergency preparedness program as the "surest" guarantee against an invader's attack.

Whether the new national defense council would have the same framework as its World war predecessor was not certain.

As the 24-year-old act now stands, the council would be headed by the secretaries of war, navy, interior, agriculture, commerce and labor, assisted by an "advisory commission" of experts from industrial and other fields.

The experts who helped marshal the nation's resources in 1917-18 were: Bernard Baruch, financier; Samuel Gompers, labor leader; Julius Rosenwald, businessman; Daniel Willard, railroad executive; Dr. Franklin H. Martin, a

CONTINUE DRIVE

Red Cross Workers Go After $3,000 Still Needed.

With only one half of its $6,000 war relief quota raised today, the Richland County chapter of the Red Cross will continue its drive until the fund is raised, General Chairman D. O. Meese said today.

While the city has given more than one half of its share of the quota, Shelby still had more than two-thirds to go and only a few county districts have reported.

The total reported today was $3,000. Of this sum the city has given $2,250; Shelby, $481; the county districts, $183; and Junior Red Cross $86.

Monroe township, with a quota of $65, has turned in $121. In this, however, was one contribution of $100 and most of the township was yet to be canvassed. Butler township has completed its canvass and has contributed $21.50. Its quota was $15.

A number of the rural districts expect to collect their quotas tomorrow during church services.

KILLS SELF IN LAWYER'S ROOM

Defendant in Cemetery Case Uses Gun to Escape Another Trial.

CINCINNATI—(INS)—A verdict of suicide was expected today in the death of W. H. Schulte, key defendant in the Arlington Memorial cemetery fraud case, who police said shot himself through the head in his attorney's hotel room.

The body was found by Richard T. Mills, Cleveland attorney who was to have represented Schulte at a retrial of the Arlington case in U. S. district court June 3.

Schulte was one of four defendants on whom the jury was unable to agree on a verdict. James H. Cleveland, assistant U. S. attorney, said Schulte's death would not interfere with the trial of Dr. J. Stewart Hagen, Stewart S. Cooper, and Alfred Lefeber, Schulte's co-defendants, on charges of mail fraud.

Police, who said the 44-year-old bookkeeper fired a trial shot through the mattress before taking his own life, attributed the apparent suicide to the strain of the first lengthy trial and dread of a second court battle.

Schulte met Morton Gilbert, kingpin of the Arlington group now serving a 15-year-sentence in Atlanta federal penitentiary, several years ago while Schulte was an insurance salesman, and became office manager for the Gilbert interests.

AIR TRIUMPHS

40 German Planes Destroyed Or Damaged, British Claim.

LONDON—(AP)—The air ministry declared today that British planes destroyed or seriously damaged 40 German bombers and fighter planes over the French and Belgian battlefronts yesterday while losing ten.

A communique said 31 German planes were seen to "burst into flames or crash on landing" and nine more were put out of action.

WAR DOUBT IS HANDICAP TODAY AMONG LEADERS

Issues Shift Over Slightly Irregular Route In Stock Market.

NEW YORK—(AP)—War doubts remained as a trading handicap in today's early stock market dealings and leading issues shifted over a slightly irregular route.

Despite the conflagration abroad, market analysts gave some attention to home business developments.

Studied was the Federal Reserve survey disclosing department store sales for the country as a whole last week exceeded the like 1939 period by 5 per cent. Making the best showing were the districts of Atlanta, Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Those still friendly to the rails were encouraged by April statements of early reporting roads. The first 19 lines to publish figures for the month revealed an upturn in net operating income of 72.9 per cent over the corresponding time last year.

MORE RAIN DUE

Sun Tries Comeback, But It Has Little Success.

The sun tried a comeback at noon today after two days of almost continuous rain, but the weatherman said there will be more showers tonight and Sunday.

He predicted mostly cloudy skies and continued cool weather for the week-end with light showers probable.

Rainfall yesterday and last night measured .42 of an inch and brought the total for the past two days to 1.12 inches.

The temperature climbed rapidly today, reaching 60 at noon. Yesterday's high was only 49 and the average for the day was 47.5 degrees, 13 below normal.

city on a vacation and George Kyle, in whose ward the improvement was proposed, voted against the issue, objecting to the type of pavement to be laid.

Both Shultz and Kyle were present at today's session and joined in the unamimous approval of the legislation.

At the close of the brief session, Kyle spoke briefly, saying he wanted to "clarify his position." He pointed out that four types of paving had been suggested and considered for the project, and that he had found that under the state's specifications, concrete "stands the acid test."

He criticized the appearance the street would have when it is completed—with brick center and concrete parking strips, and recommended that in the future, concrete be used exclusively on city streets.

Kyle also made a motion urging that all new brick be used on West Fourth street without additional cost to the property owners. (There had been some early discussion of using bricks now in the street. His motion was passed by acclamation.

The legislation calls for the construction of a new pavement from North Diamond street to a point just east of Ausdale avenue under state highway department specifications which proposes a 22-foot brick center driving lane with six-foot concrete parking strips on either side.

Total cost of the improvement has been estimated by Murray D. Shaffer, division highway engineer at Ashland at $170,000 of which the city and property owner's will pay $48,000.

The city's share of the cost—$29,300 — was appropriated from automobile registration fees while bonds for $18,700 will be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments to finance the property owner's share.

With the WPA scheduled to complete the laying of new water lines on the street within the next two weeks it is expected that the state will begin actual construction before July 1.

The project which will be started at North Diamond street and proceed westward will take about three months to complete, Shaffer has told city officials.

Inventor Tests New Death Bomb On Goat Victims

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md.—(INS)—More than 200 goats faced death in the morning mists at the army station today as Lester P. Barlow made ready for another test of his oxygen bomb.

Before a critical gallery of senators, representatives, army officials and newspapermen, Barlow will detonate a 1,000-pound charge of his explosive glmite, in the hope of killing every goat within a radius of 500 feet.

Barlow insists that his bomb, which is a liquid oxygen explosive, is considerably more lethal than the TNT bombs currently utilized by the American military forces. After touching off his bomb, Barlow will explode a charge of TNT. whichever bomb fells the most goats should be considered the more effective, the inventor insisted.

One of the female goats received a last minute reprieve when she gave birth to a set of twins. Army officers decided to spare the mother and the offspring from the tests.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Builds Residence — A building permit for the construction of a $4,500 residence at 462 Wood street, was issued at city hall today to Lloyd T. Miller, 119 Maple street.

Held To Jury—Pleading guilty in municipal court today to a charge of non-support, Maynard Stover, 87 East Fourth street, was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond. The affidavit was signed by his wife, Burnadean, who charged him with failure to provide for their two children.

Driving Rights Revoked—Victor R. Crouch, 42, Newark, was fined $50 and costs and his driving license revoked for one year in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Crouch was arrested May 18 on route 13 by state highway patrolmen.

Auto Looted — Clayton Smith, Crestline, told police last night that a blanket and coat, valued at $15 was taken from his automobile while parked on North Main street just north of Fourth.

Answer False Alarm — Firemen from companies No. 1 and 2 were called to the Ohio Brass company at 7:50 p. m. yesterday on a false alarm. They said it was caused by an electrician working on the alarm system.

Combined Meeting—Rotary and Kiwanis clubs will hold a joint meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel Tuesday at 11:45 a. m., on account of Memorial day being on the regular Kiwanis meeting day. The speaker will be Mrs. Hazel C. McIntire, state director of special education. William C. Mead will be program chairman.

INSPECTOR WADE

DON, THIS IS NOT HOTCHKISS!
FALSE WHISKERS!
HOW DO YOU LIKE THAT? WE COME UP HERE TO PROTECT HOTCHKISS, THE FAMOUS SCIENTIST! HOTCHKISS GOES NUTTY, TURNS A GUN ON US! . . . AND THEN — HE'S SOMEONE ELSE!
THOSE FOREIGN AGENTS GOT HERE FIRST! HE'S ONE OF THEM!
HEY, WADE! HE'S STIRRING!
SO ARE WE! GET OUT OF SIGHT!
WHA-WHAT HIT ME? THOSE TWO--THEY'RE GONE! I MUST HAVE THOUGHT I WAS DEAD! I BETTER SEEK OUT BALDO AND IVAN AND REPORT! WE ARE SAFE!
THEY NOTICED MY FALSE BEARD. THEY KNOW I'M NOT HOTCHKISS . . . YET THEY ARE GONE!
I MUST TELL BALDO AND IVAN: WE ARE SAFE . . .
THERE HE GOES . . . LET'S TRAVEL . . .
BEHIND THAT TREE . . .
HE CAN'T BE GONE!
IT'S CRAZY, BUT HE IS! THAT GUY MUST BE FIRST COUSIN TO HOUDINI!
THERE'RE HIS FOOTPRINTS THEN THEY DISAPPEAR!
THE APE ISN'T UP THE TREE! HE MUST BE A MAGICIAN!
PEOPLE DON'T VANISH, JIM! AT LEAST, NOT WHERE I COME FROM!
FROM THE DEPTH OF THE HEELPRINT IT LOOKS AS IF HE LEANED AGAINST THE TREE . . .
LIKE THIS!
JIM!
TRAILING THE VANISHING STRANGER, WADE LEANS AGAINST A TREE TRUNK.
A CAMOUFLAGED SECTION FALLS BACK, DROPPING WADE INTO A HOLLOW TUNNEL . . .
JIM, YOU ALL RIGHT?
SO THAT'S THE DISAPPEARING ACT. COME ON DOWN, DON.
NO WONDER WE LOST THAT GUY! THAT TREE WAS MADE OF PLASTIC AND IT LOOKS ENOUGH LIKE A TREE TO FOOL A WOODPECKER!
BEFORE THAT MATCH BURNS YOUR FINGERS, TAKE A LOOK AT THIS!
OUCH! BURNED MY FINGER!
LIGHT ANOTHER MATCH, DON! WE'VE GOT TO SEE!
OKAY, HERE—
DOUSE IT!
HEY, WHAT IS THIS? FIRST YOU WANT IT, THEN YOU DON'T!
KEEP YOUR VOICE DOWN! LOOK AHEAD OF US!
WELL, WHAT DO YOU KNOW? AN UNDERGROUND CAVE WITH ALL THE TRAPPINGS!
HEY, WHAT'S THIS? THE DEN OF THE FORTY THIEVES?
THIEVES IS RIGHT DON. NOT FORTY, BUT ENOUGH OF 'EM!
MAKE HIM TALK, IVAN!
MAKE WHO TALK, JIM? WE CAN'T SEE FROM HERE..
LOOK AT THAT SHADOW, DON! IT TELLS THE STORY!
HOTCHKISS, WILL YOU TELL US THE SCIENTIFIC SECRETS YOU HAVE DISCOVERED.... OR SHALL I HOLD THIS HEATED SWORD CLOSE ENOUGH TO SEAR YOUR EYES?

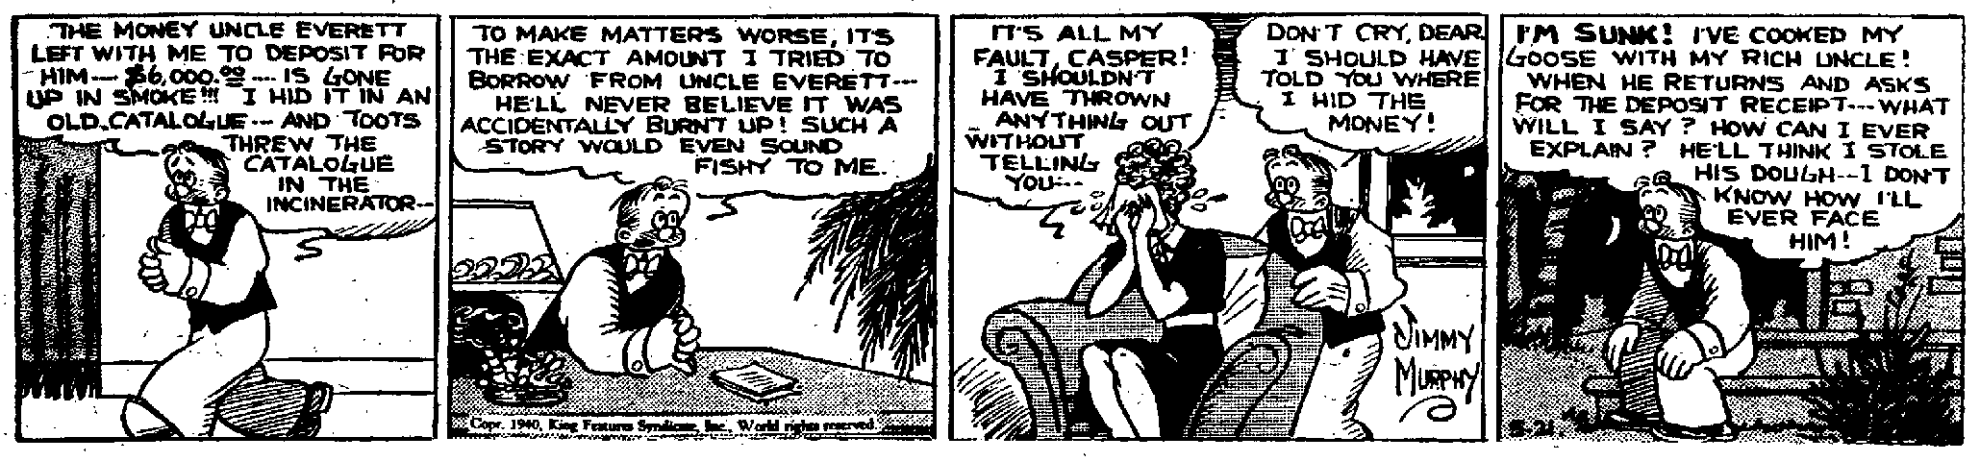
TOOTS AND CASPER

I'LL GO TO THE BANK NOW WITH THE $6000.00 THAT UNCLE EVERETT LEFT WITH ME TO DEPOSIT FOR HIM---
TOOTS, WHERE'S THAT OLD GARDEN CATALOGUE I HAD ON MY DESK? I HID UNCLE'S $6,000.00 IN IT!!!
GEE, I PUT IT IN THE INCINERATOR WITH A LOT OF OLD TRASH I THREW OUT.
GREAT SCOTT!! I SHOULD HAVE TOLD TOOTS WHERE I HID THE MONEY!!!
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
TOO LATE! NOTHING BUT RED-HOT ASHES IN HERE N-NOW....
THE MAID MUST HAVE LIT IT--- OH-H-WHAT WILL WE DO---?
JIMMY MURPHY 5-20



THE MONEY UNCLE EVERETT LEFT WITH ME TO DEPOSIT FOR HIM--- $6,000.00--- IS GONE UP IN SMOKE!!! I HID IT IN AN OLD CATALOGUE--- AND TOOTS THREW THE CATALOGUE IN THE INCINERATOR--
TO MAKE MATTERS WORSE, ITS THE EXACT AMOUNT I TRIED TO BORROW FROM UNCLE EVERETT--- HE'LL NEVER BELIEVE IT WAS ACCIDENTALLY BURNT UP! SUCH A STORY WOULD EVEN SOUND FISHY TO ME.
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
IT'S ALL MY FAULT, CASPER! I SHOULDN'T HAVE THROWN ANYTHING OUT WITHOUT TELLING YOU--- DON'T CRY, DEAR. I SHOULD HAVE TOLD YOU WHERE I HID THE MONEY!
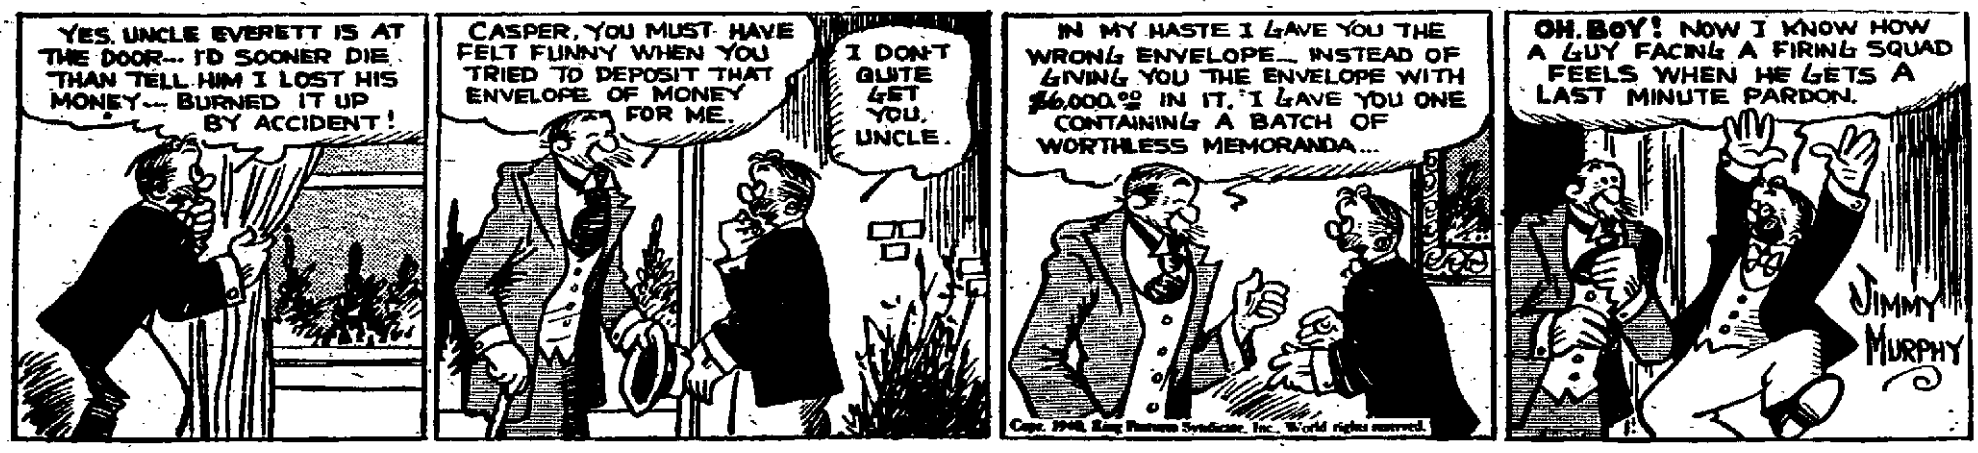
JIMMY MURPHY
I'M SUNK! I'VE COOKED MY GOOSE WITH MY RICH UNCLE! WHEN HE RETURNS AND ASKS FOR THE DEPOSIT RECEIPT--- WHAT WILL I SAY? HOW CAN I EVER EXPLAIN? HE'LL THINK I STOLE HIS DOUGH--I DON'T KNOW HOW I'LL EVER FACE HIM!

YES, THE $6.000.00 THAT UNCLE EVERETT LEFT WITH ME TO DEPOSIT FOR HIM IS GONE! NOTHING EVER WORRIED ME SO MUCH IN ALL MY LIFE.
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
IF IT WERE MY MONEY I WOULDN'T FEEL HALF AS BAD! HOW AM I GOING TO EXPLAIN WHEN HE RETURNS TOMORROW, TOOTS?
I GUESS WE'LL JUST HAVE TO FACE THE MUSIC, CASPER... WE'RE IN FOR IT AND WORRYING WON'T BRING THE MONEY BACK.
I WANT TO DO THE RIGHT THING! I'M RESPONSIBLE FOR THAT MONEY! I'LL HAVE TO MAKE IT GOOD, BUT IF I POOLED EVERYTHING I POSSESS, I COULDN'T RAISE THAT MUCH DOUGH! YES, I'LL GIVE HIM $5.00 A WEEK UNTIL IT'S ALL PAID BACK.
WHEN UNCLE EVERETT SHOWS UP TOMORROW
WOW! WHAT A SCENE THERE'LL BE.
JIMMY MURPHY

THE $6,000.00 IN CASH THAT UNCLE EVERETT ENTRUSTED TO CASPER TO DEPOSIT FOR HIM WAS ACCIDENTALLY PUT IN THE INCINERATOR AND BURNED UP.
WHEN HE HANDED ME THE MONEY, TOOTS, YOU JOKINGLY TOLD HIM HE WAS TAKING A BIG CHANCE, LEAVING IT WITH ME.
I'LL PAY HIM BACK EVERY CENT ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN--- A FEW DOLLARS A WEEK...
AND THAT MEANS WE'LL BE IN DEBT THE REST OF OUR LIVES, CASPER, BUT IT CAN'T BE HELPED.
THERE'S THE DOORBELL! IT'S UNCLE EVERETT! I'VE GOTTA FACE THE MUSIC, BUT TOOTS WILL HAVE TO TELL HIM THE BAD NEWS! I HAVEN'T THE NERVE TO BREAK IT TO HIM, MYSELF.
JIMMY MURPHY
WE FEEL SORRY FOR LITTLE CASPER.. HE SURE IS IN A TOUGH SPOT.



YES, UNCLE EVERETT IS AT THE DOOR--- I'D SOONER DIE THAN TELL HIM I LOST HIS MONEY--- BURNED IT UP BY ACCIDENT!
CASPER, YOU MUST HAVE FELT FUNNY WHEN YOU TRIED TO DEPOSIT THAT ENVELOPE OF MONEY FOR ME.
I DON'T QUITE GET YOU, UNCLE.
IN MY HASTE I GAVE YOU THE WRONG ENVELOPE--- INSTEAD OF GIVING YOU THE ENVELOPE WITH $6,000.00 IN IT, I GAVE YOU ONE CONTAINING A BATCH OF WORTHLESS MEMORANDA...
OH, BOY! NOW I KNOW HOW A GUY FACING A FIRING SQUAD FEELS WHEN HE GETS A LAST MINUTE PARDON.
JIMMY MURPHY

UNCLE EVERETT, IT'S LUCKY YOU HANDED ME THE WRONG ENVELOPE CONTAINING MEMORANDA INSTEAD OF MONEY, BECAUSE IT WAS ACCIDENTALLY PUT IN THE INCINERATOR AND BURNT UP.
OH, WE WERE SO WORRIED!
YEP, MY HAIR NEARLY TURNED GRAY WHEN I THOUGHT YOUR $6,000.00 HAD GONE UP IN SMOKE.
WE DREADED TO EVER FACE YOU AGAIN...
I'D HAVE PAID YOU BACK ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN--- $5.00 A WEEK FOR OVER 23 YEARS! BOY, I SURE WAS WORRIED...
CASPER, IF YOU OWED ME $6,000.00 IT WOULD BE ME WHO'D DO THE WORRYING.
JIMMY MURPHY

IF IT HAPPENS LATE SATURDAY OR EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

Three Persons Face Fate In Logan County Murder Trial

CLAW-HAMMER MURDER CASE OPENS MONDAY

Mother, Son and Befriended Youth Accused Jointly By Indictment.

(By Associated Press)

BELLEFONTAINE — Three lives hung in the balance today as quiet, customarily crimeless Logan county prepared to prosecute a mother, her son and a youth whom they befriended, for the Feb. 1 hammer slaying of Fred Jenkins, 51-year-old railroad telegrapher.

Accused jointly in first-degree murder indictments are the victim's widow, Mrs. Minnie L. Jenkins, 47; her 18-year-old son Merlin, and Donald Slater, 18, son of a broken family, who worked in Mrs. Jenkins' restaurant.

The state will open Monday with its trial of Slater, whom Prosecutor J. Ewing Smith contends beat Jenkins to death with a claw-hammer while he slept in his home at nearby Huntsville.

Mrs. Jenkins is scheduled to face another jury June 10, while Merlin has agreed to place his fate in the hands of a three-judge court after the other two trials.

Defense counsel Roy Warren Roof of Kenton has indicated Slater would plead guilty to a manslaughter charge, but Smith said he would demand the death penalty for what he termed a "deliberate malicious, and premediated killing.

Smith said signed statements from the three accused permitted complete reconstruction of the crime.

Smith said the victim retired at his home Feb. 1 after quarreling with Slater and threatening his wife. Slater, he said, obtained the hammer from the restaurant, beat Jenkins to death, and with Mrs. Jenkins, wrapped the body in bedclothing and drove 70 miles to Miamisburg, where the corpse was dumped in a ditch.

Returning to Huntsville, Smith said, Mrs. Jenkins cleaned the murder chamber, burned clothing and washed bed-clothing to remove traces of the crime. Merlin Jenkins, Smith said, aided Slater in taking to Mad river, 18 miles away, a day-bed from which had been removed the blanket wrapped around Jenkins' body.

The three were arrested at Huntsville Feb. 7 after Mrs. Jenkins went to Dayton to identify as her late husband a partly-clothed body found Feb. 3.

All pleaded innocent and were indicted at a special grand jury session. At Roof's request, Slater and Mrs. Jenkins were given mental examinations for 25 days at the Dayton State hospital. Both were declared sane by the court before trial dates were set.

Veteran Groups Stage Memorial Service Sunday

Veterans and patriotic organizations of Mansfield will meet at 9:45 a. m. tomorrow for annual observance of Memorial Sunday at the Madison theater.

The services this year are under the auspices of the Jewish congregations of the city. Rabbi Charles B. Latz of Canton will deliver the memorial address, with Rabbi D. Rub of Mansfield assisting in the services. Rabbi Latz will have as his subject "The Great Silence."

The stage of the theater will be converted into an altar and decorated with palms and flowers and the flags of the nation and the banners of the various veterans' organizations.

In charge of arrangements are Sam Fox and Dr. L. H. Bachrach.

MAKE DEALS FOR GUERNSEY STOCK

Two Cows and One Bull Sold By Richland Breeders.

Sale of two registered Guernsey cows and a registered bull by Richland county livestock breeders had been announced today by the American Guernsey Cattle club.

S. Glenn Vinson, Mansfield, sold a registered cow to Lee Humphrey, jr., of Mansfield, while W. A. Pfeifer of Lexington sold a cow to Clair I. Miller of Medina.

A registered bull was sold to Clarence Dick of Shelby by H. K. Lehnhart of Lexington. Another Mansfield Guernsey breeder, Jay B. Daubenspeck, purchased a cow from Chester Burkey of Wooster.

WINS PAROLE

Richland Man One of 58 to Leave Reformatory.

Edward Kahill, sentenced from Richland county last June 17 for forgery, was one of 58 inmates of the Mansfield reformatory who were granted paroles today by the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission.

Kahill will be released next Oct. 1. He is serving a one-to-20-year term.

Also paroled was Eugene De-Ashland county, serving a sentence for forgery. He will be released at the same time.

Up and Down THE STREET

There were no wild animals at the party and dance for members of the June graduating class of Senior high school in the cafeteria last night, but members of the class and their guests ate their dinner in a circus atmosphere just the same. The cafeteria was decorated to represent the interior of a circus tent. Each window represented a cage in which there was a drawing of an animal, there were balloons fastened to the tables and in he middle of the cafetera was a large pop corn stand, which did a rushing business.

Some unusual tulip stocks may be seen at the tulip garden of Mrs. John Briggs, at Ganges. The normal tulip has just two green leaves, one stem and one blossom. Mrs. Briggs has a number this year with two stems and blooms and three stems and bloom, all coming from a single bulb. She sent one to the News-Journal office that had three long, firm stems coming from a center stalk, topped by three perfect rose-lavender blooms. There were six green leaves, one of which was a giant. It measured 17 inches long and six inches wide. The entire cluster, after it had been cut close to the ground, measured about 28 inches.

Maybe it was because of the rush of work the past several months in municipal court that Miss Isabel Gertsmeyer, deputy clerk, conceived the idea of the odd garment she designed the other day so she could keep on working while workmen were scrubbing down the walls of the office. She took a newspaper and pinned it around her shoulders in shawl fashion to protect her while the wall-washers went about their business.

Mansfield sufflebaord players are looking for a new referee to take the place of Andrew Lacher, an expert at the game who died a few days ago. Mr. Lacher, who was 81, was one of the first players in the city and was considered an authority on the game. In the later years of his life he refereed games for scores of players at the Frietchen garage on South Diamond street.

NOTED MUSICIAN TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Josephine Myers, 48, Dies of Heart Disease; Former Ashland Resident.

Mrs. Josephine Forsythe Myers, 48, former Ashland woman and patron of musical life in northern Ohio, died yesterday afternoon in Cleveland after a year's illness with heart disease.

Mrs. Myers was the widow of Philip A. Myers, Ashland industrialist who died in 1932 of injuries received in an auto accdent. She was a natve of Cleveland and made her home there after her husband's death.

She was widely known as the composer of the musical accompaniment for The Lord's Prayer. She wrote it in 1924 at the time of her marriage to Mr. Myers and it was first used at their marriage ceremony.

Since then it has been used at the Easter sunrise services at the Hollywood Bowl and up until this year Mrs. Myers had played the accompaniment herself at the famous Easter service. In 1936 her composition was presented at the international Eisteddfod in Cardiff, Wales.

Mrs. Myers' musical career began when she was a girl. A Cleveland woman became interested in her voice and sponsored her training. At one time she was a pupil of Mme. Sembrich.

She spoke in Mansfield five years ago when Mrs. Edith Jameson, an intimate friend, presented her at a Sunday afternoon musicale at First Congregational church. She had a number of acquaintances in Mansfield music circles.

Mrs. Myers is survived by her daughter, Phyllis. Funeral arrangements were incompicte today.

CONTRACTOR, 59, TAKEN BY DEATH

Jason E. Ward, 59, of 66 Howard street, a painting contractor, died early today in General hospital following a brief illness.

Born March 31, 1881, in Fairfield county, Mr. Ward came to Mansfield 38 years ago. Surviving are his wife, Hattie, a son David, three daughters, Mrs. George Cicolani, Mrs. Rudy Etzel, Rose Ward, and a brother Bert, all of Mansfield, a sister, Mrs. Mary Grubb of Columbus and six grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Monday with Rev. Grover E. Sweyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

GOLDENDALE, Wash.—(AP)—Elmer Hansen, a lineman who climbs tall power poles daily, is receiving hospital treatment for a tumble. He slipped in his bathtub, landed on his chest and injured his diaphragm.

BECOMES CITY

CLEVELAND—(AP)—University Heights, Cleveland suburb, has become a city in the last 10 years, it's population nearly tripled, R. C. Moran census supervisor in this area reported today. The census count just completed shows a population of 5,971, an increase of 170 per cent over the 2,237 inhabitants counted in 1930.

SOLICITOR CLEARS WAY FOR ROADSIDE PARK AT AIRPORT

Construction of a roadside park at the municipal airport was one step nearer reality today as City Solicitor Marion D Ward informed city council it could legally grant the state permission to develop the property along route 13.

Ward had been asked to rule on the legality of turning over a tract of municipal property for the proposed development at the May 7 meeting.

His opinion was sought after council received a communication from Mayor William J. Locke informing the legislators that the state highway department was considering the airport location for a park.

Locke said the state sought permission to develop a tract with an 800-foot frontage on route 13 and 200 feet deep by the construction of a roadside park.

Council was informed by Ward that the city could not deed property to the state but might grant the highway department an easement or license to use the land for park purposes.

The state's proposal to develop the site was recommended by the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautical association and is included in a $40,000 National Youth Administration proposal now under consideration by the government agency.

CONGRESS TOLD FASTER ACTION NOW NECESSARY

Investigation Shows 'Shocking Lack of Preparedness,' Senator Claims.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Demands that the re-armament program be speeded even beyond administration plans resounded in congress today as panicky members declared that investigation revealed a "shocking" lack of preparedness.

The jittery demands, however, apparently failed to disturb high ranking army and navy officers who said that they had repeatedly pointed out the length of time necessary to bring the armed forces to a "reasonable" state of preparedness.

Even though congress apparently will make $3,500,000,000 available for national defense purposes in the next fiscal year, it will require from two to four years to complete the program, congressional committees were informed.

Senator Byrd (D) Va., planned to take the senate floor and urge that business men be called into the service of the government to speed the defense program.

"We have been told of a shocking condition," he said. "We have appropriated billions of dollars and are startled to find that the navy is in no shape for defense, except for surface craft."

The senate naval affairs committee, after approving a $2,200,000,000 authorization program for airplanes and bases, asked the navy to report how the program can be speeded up.

Proposals that business men be installed in the war and navy departments will be rejected, it appeared. High ranking navy officers informed the house appropriations naval sub-committee that their own officers will fill executive positions.

"It wouldn't do any good to call business men in," said Chairman Scrugham (D) Nev., of the sub-committee. "This is a different kind of business. They would simply slow up progress."

Congress paused temporarily in the enactment of national defense legislation, but leaders promised to pound out the program next week.

WIDOW, 70, DIES

Mrs. Alice Snyder Stricken at Crestline Today.

Mrs. Alice Snyder, 70, of 26½ East First street, widow of Samuel Snyder, died early today in Crestline at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank O. Scheiber with whom she had been visiting. She had been ill but a short time.

Mrs. Snyder was born Oct. 25, 1869 in Indiana, and was a member of the Mansfield Gospel Center church. Surviving are three sons, Adolph of Bellville, Charles of Mansfield and Lester of Crestline; two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Robinson with whom she lived in Mansfield and Mrs. Scheiber, and five grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday with Rev. S. R. Parrett officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

GUEST LEARNS PISTOL LOADED

Birthday Party Host Killed in Rooming House.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— A birthday party ended violently early today with the host dead from bullet wounds and the guest of honor held in jail.

Athur Carvest, 30, was the fatal victim. He was slain at his rooming house during a party held for the birthday anniversary of a 45-year-old man whom police said did the shooting.

The guest claimed the gun was discharge accidentally. He was taken voluntarily into custody.

TWO ESCAPE

Motorists Unhurt When Cars Collide on Route 13.

Not That It Matters

You Can't Laugh Off the 'Fifth Column'—We've Laughed It Off Too Long

—By JANE WILLIAMS

WHEN you read of the "fifth column" you probably have a swift mental picture of some beetle-browed, sinister individual in some far away city working to undermine your government. You never think of the man next door, do you? You never stop to think that a man you know very well, who holds a responsible city, state or federal position, may be one of an organized force to take over your city when the day and the hour comes.

Yet Holland and Belgium and Norway found to their tragic sorrow that the fifth column in their countries was made up of "men who lived next door," of pathetic refugees who came begging sanctuary; of individuals they had harbored and given jobs for years; of their own people.

America probably has the largest fifth column of any country in the world, because we not only have invited them in, and thrown down the immigration bars, but we've coddled them after we got them here. When they got on soap boxes and yelled "Down with America," we winked and said "You know—free speech!" They were welcomed in the highest places in the land by the highest officials. Now there is hurried talk of deportation en masse.

Why should we deport them when we have a high treason law which provides for lining them up before a stone wall and shooting them?

* * *

IN Texas this week a community drove three people out of town who had been passing out Nazi literature and who shouted that there were thousands in the United States to take their place and preach the word of Naziism. In Germany, which is their Utopia, traitors wouldn't have been driven out of town. They would have been executed or placed in concentration camps.

America's first national defense set-up should be a series of concentration camps; the airplanes are of secondary importance.

* * *

A SMALL TOWN 50 miles west of here asked for a secret investigation of the German bund. There were 75 members of the organization in a town of 4,000, and a lot of sympathizers.

How many are there in Mansfield?

* * *

THERE is one thing that every sane, intelligent person should remember in these emotional times. That is that every American has a right to his own opinions and sympathies; and that many loyal and patriotic Americans sympathize with the fundamental cause of Germany in spite of her methods of gaining her ends, and many even believe sincerely that America would be better off from an industrial and foreign trades standpoint if Germany won the war.

Right or wrong they have a right to think as they please, and it gains no ends nor does it demonstrate patriotism to argue about it. Loud-mouthed arguments and chest-thumping, on one side or the other, is either hysteria or stupidity.

Every American then, must think as he believes best, but NO ONE, American or foreigner, has the right to live within these United States and believe in or sympathize with anything that is destructive to our present form of government.

* * *

WHEN the revolution comes" is a gag-line that always gets a laugh, but when, and if, it comes, I'll bet you my head (which I wouldn't need any longer) that there would be 500 people in Mansfield who would be prepared to take over the town, lock, stock and barrel. And I'll bet you a scalp lock to a nickel there are key men in every major industrial plant in this town; I couldn't prove it, I'm merely convinced of it.

* * *

MILLIONS of Americans had hoped that politics would be kept out of this grave situation, but it can't be done. Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, selected to answer Col. Lindbergh's plea for straight thinking instead of hysterical clatter, merely made a personal attack on Lindbergh. He made just the sort of a speech you would expect from a political partisan.

He skipped over Lindbergh's plea for a "greater air force, a greater navy and a greater army;" he attacked the colonel's suggestion that before we spend billions of dollars we formulate a definite plan of defense.

Senator Byrnes' entire speech was inflammatory propaganda, calculated to make you believe that the enemy was at the gates of your city, all ready to murder the women and children first.

* * *

WAS it only two years ago that we all vowed never again would we be stampeded by propaganda, never again would we go to war because of "hysterical clatter" about the enemy taking over Mexico or Canada? We forget so soon and so easily. And we jump all over the first person who reminds us of it, as Lindbergh did.

We Americans are not confronted by some huge fantastic ogre that means immediate war, but rather by the consequence of our own stupidity. We are not planning a war of aggression, but a careful defense that should extend through the years.

And lastly we should profit by the example of the French people who staked their all on the Maginot line—but neglected the enemy already behind it.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This is getting monotonous. It's a pattern. Priscilla Lane is the latest to fit it. Priscilla Lane, a success in pictures after a start as an orchestra singer, has finally "arrived." She has turned down a role and been suspended.

This admits her to the large company of other Warner "arrivals" headed by Bette Davis and including James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Jane Bryan, Dick Powell, Kay Francis, George Brent, Olivia De Havilland, etc., some of whom are ex-Warnerites by now.

Miss De Havilland, after "Gone With the Wind," immediately rejected her next proffered role and took suspension. Difficulties settled, she returned to work in "Episode." Although at peace and active, Olivia was deemed by gentlemen of the company to be playing a grande dame act with them. Their vengeance was swift and effective: Olivia, who abhors camera cranes, was induced to take a ride on one. When the sitting-end of the crane was high off the floor, Olivia was left alone. The gentlemen suddenly found business off the stage, and walked out. Miss De Havilland, repentant, was rescued some time later.

* * *

But this too is getting monotonous. This too fits a pattern. The gentlemen of the sets always have means of coping with "difficult" players. Most effective, but less picturesque than enforced crane sitting, is silence. You simply ignore 'em, and they come around. Still photographers, especially, have found this system efficacious. Even "difficult" people like to have their pictures taken.

Grammar cycle: "The Sentence" (George Brent, Virginia Bruce, Richard Barthelmess) is now in production; upcoming is "The Letter" (Bette Davis).

Blessed-event department: Florian, the horsey beauty, is about to become a papa; the mother is a mare owned by Robert Young, the mating arranged as a gift to Young by Florian's owner, Winfield R. Sheehan who produced "Florian."

Mischa Auer's enthusiasm for cameras has gone to new lengths. Mischa designed a camera studio and dark rooms and instructed his architect to build a house around them. . . .

* * *

Sidelight on labor in Hollywood: Three technicians had jobs at Warner's. One was released because of insufficient work. The other two went to the boss, asked to make up the difference from their own pay checks. All three are working today, at one-third cuts. . . .

Everybody who has ever tried to rope in a movie actor for a personal appearance at club, school, or church knows it is no picnic, the demand being constant and the supply being busy. . . . A policeman undertook to provide movie talent for a scout picnic, and achieved the following remarkable results: James Stewart, Nat Pendleton, Tom Neal, John Carroll and Alan Curtis showed up, plus Jane Withers, who is a Girl Scout herself. . . . The cop just asked them to come.

Nazis Claim Allies Completely Trapped

Ring Tightened Around Defense Armies On Flanders Plains; Vimy Ridge Captured by Germans.

The ring—it now might be called a garrote—was tightened on its eastern front by capture of Ghent and Courtrai and crossing of the Lys river, a sequel to an earlier smash of Nazi divisions across the Scheldt which in one section parallels the north-south Lys river line.

The capture of Courtrai on the Lys brought a barb of the German envelopment front 15 miles northeast of the French industrial city of Lille, just inside the French border. Lille's peacetime population was more than 100,000 and it was a center of war industries. Lille changed hands three times in 1914.

Between Roubaix and Valenciennes, another sector of the envelopment front, southeast of Lille, German troops attacked French border fortifications, the high command said.

To the south, between Valenciennes and Vimy, it was said that "the attack on both sides of Douai is progressing in a northwestern direction."

South of Sedan, near the hinge of the big and little Maginot lines, sector of the first German penetration into France, German troops "in recent days wrenched an important hillside strong point from the enemy after stout fighting and kept it despite heavy counterattacks."

The German air force lashed at Allied lines threatening the two sides of its salient to the channel which forms the lower jaw of the trap and crashed bombs into Belgian and French channel ports, "destroying or heavily damaging one destroyer and seven merchant ships or transports with a total tonnage of roughly 20,000."

"An additional destroyer, as previously reported, was sunk by anti-aircraft artillery," said the communique.

French Continue Claims German Thrusts Thrown Back

BULLETIN

PARIS—(UP)—The newspaper Paris Soir said today that French forces had reoccupied the city of Amiens on the south bank of the Somme river after having wiped out a German bridgehead in the area. If Soir's report were to be confirmed, it would be regarded as a most important operation, enabling the French to establish themselves solidly along a new front.

PARIS—(AP)—The great battle of Flanders continued in full violence today, a military spokesman reported, as German troops moving through the breach in the Allied lines near Peronne met determined French resistance in the northwest.

He said German detachments which penetrated into St. Omer, 22 miles southeast of the channel port of Calais, were being held off by the French defenders.

The spokesman said fighting was continuing in the regions of Abbeville, on the Somme river 12 miles from the channel, and Boulogne, channel port south of Calais.

He reported that the British and French air forces were laying down heavy bombardments on the German rear lines, on troop concentrations and on lines of communication.

While the morning communique of the high command reported consolidation of positions on the Somme and the taking of "a certain number of prisoners," the chief objective of the French army was to bite through the German salient driven toward the channel just north of the Somme.

The war office spokesman said "hundreds of prisoners" were taken in local successes, mopping-up operations where Nazi troops had established bridgeheads south of Amiens.

He said the irregular, jagged French line from Valenciennes through Cambrai, Arras and St. Omer to Boulogne remained unchanged, while the breach in the Peronne-Bapaume area still was not closed.

But he reported Allied troops were moving in in a pincer advance intended to trap the fast-moving German "Panzer" units which have streaked through this corridor toward the English channel and at the same time to establish connection between the main French force on the Somme and the Allied armies pinned inside the German ring of steel in Flanders and Belgium.

South of Sedan, where fighting is progressive favorably in the wooded section, the spokesman said the French had recovered all ground lost to the Germans. He described engagements in this region as "very hot," and said new artillery bombardments began this morning.

Dispatches from the front indicated that the French, aided by concentrated artillery fire, were attacking heavily on both sides of the breach and that they had succeeded in closing in for a distance of some 10 miles.

Elsewhere the Allied lines were reported holding firm and there was an atmosphere of flinty confidence here (13 words censored here).

While the main body of the French sought to drive north from the Somme and cut the German "bottleneck," Allied troops withdrawing from Belgium were said to be hammering at the Nazi right flank in the vicinity of Cambrai.

BARBARA ASKS CITIZENSHIP

Woolworth Heiress Says She Made Mistake.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, wants to regain her American citizenship, she let it be known today.

She feels, she disclosed, that she made a mistake when she swore allegiance to Denmark shortly after her marriage to Count Kurt Von Haugwitz-Reventlow, but she pointed out that she did it in order to protect the interests of her small son, Lance, now in Honolulu.

"I realize," she said, "that I made a mistake and I wish I had consulted someone who could have given me advice."

PLANE ORDERS

Allies Surprised at Speed of American Production.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Allied orders for American warplanes and accessories amount today to about $725,000,000, according to G. W. Wynne, spokesman for the Anglo-French purchasing mission. He said the British and French were "pleasantly surprised" over the rapid deliveries given them by American manufacturers and that the output was increasing each month.

BITTER RETORT

Declares German Arms To Give Reply To King George.

BERLIN—(AP)—Dr. Otto Deitrich, German press chief, in a bitter retort to the Empire day address of King George of England wrote today that "German arms" would "give the reply due" the monarch.

NAME CHANGED

WESTLAKE—(AP)—This Cuyahoga county village expects to get its own mail from now on. A court order changed its name from Dover village to Westlake. Residents asked the change, to avoid confusion with Dover in Tuscarawas county.

EX-SENATOR DIES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Clarence W. Watson, 76, who served from 1911 to 1913 as Democratic U. S. senator from West Virginia, died yesterday after an operation. A resident of Fairmont, W. Va., he resigned in 1928 as president of the Consolidation Coal Co., which he helped develop.

DROWNED SELF

MARIETTA—(AP)—Coroner R. W. Riggs today listed the death of Oliver C. Wilson, 67, treasurer of the Phoenix Mill Co., as a suicide. Wilson drowned in the Ohio river. Riggs said Wilson had been despondent over poor health and the European war.

roughly paralleling and close to the coast between Boulogne and Calais. The main arterial road between the towns is some distance inland.

British Royal Air Force planes hurtled across the channel and back in continuous relays, bombing the Germans in the Artois Gap through which they sent motorcyclists and mechanized forces to push their way to Boulogne and, according to reports here, to Calais.

The situation was a puzzling one. Britain, most closely affected, with the threat of a German invasion coming ever nearer, insisted that the German move to the coast was a serious and dangerous one.

French authorities insisted that the Germans had not actually captured either Calais or Boulogne, and British authorities said that the French reports should be treated with reserve.

(Official Berlin quarters had not claimed the fall of Boulogne or Calais.)

German Radio Says British Boats Sunk.

BERLIN—(AP)—The German radio announced today in a special broadcast that Nazi warplanes had badly damaged a British aircraft carrier off the Norwegian coast, and sunk one cruiser and two supply ships.

In addition, the announcement said, an enemy battleship, which had been damaged earlier by two bomb hits, was struck again three times and put out of commission.

Another cruiser, two supply ships and a tanker were reported damaged.

The radio said that the aircraft carrier had been set afire by one of the bomb hits.

SIREN STOPPED

Fire Signal at Westerville Proves Good Bird House.

WESTERVILLE—(AP)—For a month Westerville had no occasion to use its fire siren atop a water tower.

But when a call finally came, the siren wouldn't work. Firemen discovered a bird's nest in it.

FIRE FIGHTERS

Store Employes Forget To Call Fire Department.

SEATTLE—(AP)—Employes frantically fought a fire in the rear of a grocery store. It gained enough headway to do an estimated $2,800 damage before anyone thought of calling the fire department.

The nearest fire station was across the street.

RESOLUTIONS ON SOCIAL ISSUES OKED AT PARLEY

Mansfield Delegates Return From Lutheran Synod Meet Held at Youngstown.

Mansfield delegates to the 20th annual convention of the United Lutheran Synod of Ohio, held in Youngstown this week, has returned home today following the four-day meeting at St. Luke's Lutheran church there.

Outstanding among the resolutions adopted by the convention were two that were outstanding in their pronouncement of timely social issues. The first read, "Resolved, that the board register its protest against motion pictures, radio broadcasts, and news releases as are designated to stir up national or racial hatreds; and that on the other hand it urge pastors and teachers to seek by positive biblical instruction to inculcate into the minds and hearts of their people Christian ideals of peace and brotherhood through Christ in these ominous times."

Hits Sex Literature.

Second of these resolutions read, "Resolved, that the board denounce the dissemination of indecent literature particularly that which pertains to sex and crime, as subversive of the purity of mind and heart and of the sanctity of the home, which the church strives to uphold, and that it urge pastors and churches not only to seek by tactful means and methods the elimination of such literature from all newstands in their local areas."

Harry C. Finefrock, delegate from St. Luke's Lutheran church, was elected one of six lay delegates-at-large to represent the synod at the 12th biennial convention of the United Lutheran church in America, meeting Oct. 9 to 16 at Omaha, Neb. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, was named a clerical alternate-at-large.

Confirming the elections of clerical and lay delegates from the central section of Ohio during the Central Conference convention last fall in Plymouth, Dr. Joseph Sittler, Synod president, declared Rev. H. S. Garnes of St. Luke's church, Rev. Herman L. Gilbert of St. Paul church, Rev. Herbert W. Veler of Lorain, R. E. Stroup of Shelby, F. M. Teeter of Crestline and T. M. Gleason of Galion, duly qualified delegates.

Rev. Simon A. Metzger of Crestline, was elected to the board of directors of Wittenberg college, Springfield.

LAST COMMUNION RITES

The final communion service for this conference year will be held at 10:30 a. m. Sunday at the South Main Street Evangelical church.

Rev. R. A. Sain of Columbus, district superintendent, will be guest speaker. The fourth quarterly conference will be held following the service. At the 7:30 p. m. service, the pastor Rev. C. L. Kern, will speak on "Christianity and Church Membership."

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Memorial day will be observed during the Sunday school hour at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow at the First Methodist church with each department holding services appropriate for the occasion.

Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor, will speak on "Love, A Universal Law" during the worship service at 10:30 a. m. The choir, directed by James T. Weber, will sing two numbers, "O, Lord Most High" and "God Bless America."

TOPIC ANNOUNCED

Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, will speak on "Light in a Dark World" at the 10:30 a. m. service of worship tomorrow. The choir will sing "Recessional," and Mrs. H. H. Clingan, organist, will play "Adagio" and "May Night."

Next week the Ruth Circle class will convene at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday with Mrs. Lois Anson, 308 Park Avenue west.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—even if there isn't a state highway patrolman in sight.

"Poetry week" comes to an end and wastebaskets will resume merely their customary overflow.

Macaulay thought the British government might some day be in New Zealand, but the present administration, remembering that it has been in London for 2,000 years, is in no hurry to move even as far as Canada.

Industrial Co-operation Assured

QUICK assurance of industrial co-operation with defensive plans of government encourages belief that, however great the requirements, the United States will be able to speed up production of planes and other war equipment needed to guard this country against invasion by any hostile power.

It cannot be doubted that the ingenuity, scope and production facilities of American industries are sufficient to meet any demands that may be made upon them at a time when, as was said yesterday, "our very lives and liberties may be involved."

What will be needed, however, is such co-ordination of industrial production for defense purposes as can be attained only through the capable direction of competent men, selected on the basis of experience in large scale production methods.

Tasks of such magnitude cannot be safely entrusted to political officeholders who have no knowledge of industrial management or the intricacies of mass production.

And, in addition to the co-operation of heads of industries, it is also essential that President Roosevelt and the United States government be accorded the whole hearted support of labor leaders and all members of their organizations, for without this there could be a serious hampering of the nation's defense program.

As is now being demonstrated in Europe, where small countries are being invaded, thousands killed, cities destroyed and millions of persons in the role of helpless refugees, things that seem important in normal times are of minor consequence when life and liberty are threatened.

In considering the problems which now confront the American people it is actual conditions that must be dealt with, not the theories of those who envision world peace as something that can be accomplished by wishes and hopes.

A united America, equipped to defend itself against the machinery of modern warfare, is the best guarantee of national and individual safety.

New World's Greater Vigor

PROFESSOR RAYMOND PEARL, biologist of Johns Hopkins university, told the American Scientific Congress recently that population is increasing more rapidly in this hemisphere than in the Old World, partly because of superior vigor.

"It appears that the population of the Western Hemisphere have a more favorable age distribution," he said, "for the production of goods for living and wealth, for further growth, for a progressive and hopeful outlook on life and its problems, and for health, than do the aggregate populations of either the Eastern Hemisphere or Oceania.

"The peoples of the New World should establish national population policies, based upon scientific principles, to the end that the benefits associated with the present relatively superior position may not be too rapidly dissipated and lost."

At any rate, the American peoples should push public health work, preventive medicine, sanitary measures, and so on. And they should make sure that longer life will be worth living by solving the economic problems of distribution, production and employment. Such steps will make it easier finally to solve the social problems of education, recreation and racial tolerance.

China's Co-operative Revival

THE RECUPERATION of China began, says Nym Wales in the Nation, when a little group of refugee blacksmiths set up a co-operative foundry in an inland village of Shensi province. That was the beginning of Chinese Industrial Co-operatives.

The Japanese invaders heard of it, and decided to stop the movement. They sent a bombing squadron and destroyed the foundry. But the blacksmiths gathered up the wreckage and rebuilt it, this time and every succeeding time in the likeness of a house, to all appearances like other houses, so that flying bombers could not find them.

So the people have revived and created industries in small units, by the co-operative method, to an extent that is expected to be the economic salvation of China. It takes astonishingly little money. For $50 they can launch a surgical gauze co-op, for $100 a candle-making unit, for $200 a cotton-weaving unit, and so on. A $700 co-op will employ 100 workmen, says Mr. Wales, and $7 will give a man a permanent job.

"Nowhere else on earth," he concludes, "can so much be done with so little. For the cost of one battleship America could finance enough industry in China to keep its armies fighting indefinitely, and that loan could eventually be repaid instead of being scrapped like a battleship."

More Nazis In Mexico

AT A TIME when it might be supposed that all Germans were needed at home, for the Nazi army or its supply system, it is surprising to hear from Mexico City that groups of Germans are entering that country. There are more than in normal times, the reports say.

Americans naturally wonder whether these are legitimate immigrants and business agents, or whether they represent a "fifth column" designed to foster Mexican hostility to the United States.

Unimportant Land Found

REAR ADMIRAL BYRD, just back to report on his latest explorations in Antarctica, says his expedition found new lands, but adds that they are of doubtful commercial or strategic advantage. The expedition mapped 900 miles of unknown coastline and made other discoveries which apparently will be of more interest to scientists, geographers and meteorologists than to diplomats and militarists.

This means that flags planted there to claim possession for one nation or another need not lead to international disputes and quarrels. By the time such areas become important, mankind may have learned to co-operate in their use.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"What about Kaltenborn?" asks J. R. M. of Moultrie, Ga. "His voice sounds German, though I get the impression he wants to be friendly to the Allies. I listen to his broadcasts all the time."

Well, H. V. Kaltenborn is a mild and friendly though energetic man with iron gray hair and blue eyes. He is just an inch under six feet, and he weighs about 190 pounds. He is 62 years old. Such an age may seem advanced when considered in cold print, but when you take into account his tennis activities you seldom think of him as elderly. Kaltenborn is champion of the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, New York, and he has never been defeated.

* * *

SOMETIMES on his broadcasts you get the idea that he has visited a good many places and talked with a good many important people. It is seldom that a city or a country figures in the news with which he is not intimately acquainted. He is one of the very few foreigners who has ever been permitted to broadcast from a radio station in Moscow. He has broadcast interviews with Hitler, Mussolini, Mahatma Gandhi, and Chiang Kai-shek. Once he was captured by Chinese bandits and held for ransom. He was the first man in history to cover a battle—the attack upon Irun, Spain—with a microphone.

So you can see that when Hans Kaltenborn—that's his name, Hans—sits down in his broadcasting booth to analyze the news for you, he has at least a speaking acquaintance with most of the leading principals to start with. He has traveled through foreign countries and probed through European capitals so long that now he is one of the best informed men on European affairs in this country.

There is German blood in his veins, though he is as American as you or your brother. He hates war and he abhors totalitarian aggression. He was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and he began his career as a partner of his father in the building materials business.

* * *

BUT that didn't last very long for the reason that the Spanish-American war came along and he enlisted. He came out of the war a top sergeant and at once got on a cattle boat bound for Europe. This was the beginning of his "international" restlessness and probably was the first of scores of journeys to all parts of the world. Once, for a while, he saw life as a travelling salesman in France. Before that he was a reporter. Eventually he went to Berlin as secretary of the Harvard Professional exchange. Kaltenborn is a Harvard man, and he graduated cum laude. He also wears a Phi Beta Kappa key.

His office at NBC is just a plain, everyday desk in the news room. I happened to have been up their yesterday and noticed on his desk a type-written list of foreign cities, with their correct pronunciations listed after them. They were, I suppose, to facilitate him in handling those tongue-twisters on his broadcasts. He spends two or three hours daily up there, sorting out his material and arranging it in the order he desires. After that he steps int a room off to one side and makes his broadcasts. Then he goes home to a nice hot dinner, at No. 9 Garden Place, Brooklyn, which Mrs. Kaltenborn always has ready for him.

AFTER A TWENTY-YEAR NAP

Pan-America Prefers Democracy

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON is very well satisfied with evidences of the Pan America's determination to remain democratic no matter what happens in Europe.

All advices from capitals of the southern republics are to the effect that liberty-loving elements in their part of the new world simply have been strengthened by recent German successes, in their resolve to keep totalitarianism from gaining a foothold in our hemisphere.

If there's any southern country concerning which Washington, most confidentially, has been a trifle uneasy, it's Mexico. Congressman Martin Dies, for instance, has suggested that un-American propaganda is dangerously prevalent just below the Rio Grande.

However, Josephus Daniels, our ambassador in Mexico City, who probably is as good a judge as Congressman Dies, says it isn't. The ambassador, temporarily away from his post on a visit home, reports that, while there's a Mexican Communistic party, it isn't strong, and that Nazi-ism is unpopular in the republic.

Furthermore, he mentions that, if the Dies committee knows anything more of totalitarian plotting on Mexico's side of the border than the Mexican government knows, the latter government will be glad to be enlightened. This doesn't sound particularly undemocratic so far as Mexico is concerned.

Of course, Yankee-Mexican relations have been somewhat strained by the oil controversy, but that doesn't in the least imply that Mexico is totalitarian.

Emphatically Neutral.

Argentina, Uruguay and Panama have been quicker than Uncle Sam has been to resent overseas disregard of American neutrality. They were prompt to take offense at the landing of British and French marines in the Dutch West Indies. We were disposed to wink at it. They are almost more neutral than we are. They're so neutral that they verge on being willing to fight for neutrality.

They're for Pan-American solidarity, anyhow. If it does have to be fought for, Uncle Sam will have to do the fighting—not the Pan Americas in their entirety. Still, they're in favor of it.

Germany's quite strong on the South American east coast. A couple of Brazil's southern states are nearly wholly German. They'd like to Nazify the entire country. But the very fact that they're so Nazificated makes the rest of Brazil hate them. And the anti-Nazi greatly predominate throughout the country elsewhere.

Italians are thick in Argentina. The newspaper with the largest Argentine circulation is an Italian-language daily—La Patria degli Italiani of Buenos Aires. But the country's so violently anti-Fascist that I've seen anti-Fascist riots there, in which hundreds were killed. I had to hunt my hole myself.

The Latin-American west coast hasn't so many Germans, Italians or any Russians, to speak of at all. But there they're afraid of the Japanese. Their reasoning is about what ours used to be when we were cursing Oriental "cheap labor."

Only, now, they discuss military conquest as well as cheap labor.

Getting Practical.

The whole thing's this:

It's simmering down to a practicality.

The Americas, south of the United States, hate their dictatorships.

They're getting to be democratic.

In short, we're becoming a truly democratic hemisphere.

Taken individually, we always have been theoretically democratic. But, country by country; not collectively.

Listen, World!

Are Working Wives Wrecking Marriage?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE RANEE OF SARAWAK started it. Remember those gibes at our American "women's rights"?

"In gaining equality they've succeeded only in giving men more freedom. . . . The Malay women have more real equality than American wives. . . . Emancipation for American women means frustration for their men, 'who look either exhausted, or frightened—intimidated by a swarm of intellectual women."

And more and meaner words to the same effect, which you'd think would have irked the local lassies plenty. Yet already the Rajah's Missis is getting a round of applause. With "An Old-fashioned Grandmother" leading the chorus.

"She's absolutely right!" says Gram. "I grew up in the days before suffrage, when a woman's only 'job' lay in her own home or her father's, or some school room. I admit I thought enviously of a wider freedom and was as enthusiastic over the prospect of Women's Rights as anyone. But, looking back, comparing those earlier homes with the ones I see today, I realize what a mistake I made.

"I honestly believe that the typical American wife of 1880 had more real power and freedom—and far less anxiety—than the married woman of today. She may not have a vote or a career, but she had a home and a husband who felt responsible for that home.

"Modern girls forget what every old-fashioned girl constantly remembered—that marriage is an 'acquired habit' with men. They have to be coaxed into it, then flattered to make them stay. A man used to stick by his home because it was his personal possession. His pride was wrapped up in it . . . his standing as a man was based on it. But when women began taking jobs and sharing expenses, that attitude changed. Men no longer felt the same responsibility—and soon showed it.

"You can see the results everywhere today. I have a very bright granddaughter who insisted on keeping her fine position after marriage. It did seem foolish for her to give up such a splendid salary, although I secretly feared she would lose more than a pay check unless she did.

"My fears were justified. Within three months her husband lost his job. He could easily have obtained one that was not quite so good—and I am sure he would have done so if his wife had not been working. But they both decided that her salary would tide them over 'until something better turns up.' They are still waiting for it to turn up. In the meantime, their home is going on the rocks.

"Her faith in him has turned to bitterness. She is ashamed of her 'idle husband.' She does not see that by holding a position herself, she robbed him of his! It was not only his duty, but his right as a husband to carry that load. But when she lifted it from him, he became indifferent.

"I firmly believe in young girls working. It is not only necessary from a financial viewpoint, but it also helps them understand their husbands' world. But I am convinced that Working Wives are wrecking marriage."

An Old-Fashioned Grandmother. So the battle's on. And if you've a come-back, now's the time to mail it in.

Bridge Privileges.

The ruling of a San Jose divorce court, that it is not cruelty if a wife kicks her husband under the bridge table, is, we think, in line with the general state of judicial feeling. When bridge gets along to the kicking phase, it becomes an occupation, and a few boots in the shins in the course of an evening's hard play are no more than occupational hazards.

One of the big leagues' outstanding catchers is a bridge player of parts in the off season and, we are given to understand, goes on wearing his leg armor all winter, for some of the most successful players are as cruelly scarred below the knees as any dub. The quality of one's game is, of itself, no protection. In California, the husband had trumped the little woman's ace—usually cited as a crime justifying everything up to electrocution; but a trump may very well be the correct play on partner's ace. We should like to know more about the hand.—Detroit News.

Daily Bible Thought

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasurers are there is your heart also.—Matthew 6:19:21.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE PEOPLE of Germany spend a third of their national income on military upkeep. In contrast, United States citizens—feeling secure behind two big green oceans—grudgingly allow one-fortieth of their paycheck to be spent on defense.

For that money they've been able to buy a one-ocean navy, a small air force and a nucleus of an army. These seemed enough when a community of friendly powers (and the British navy) lay between America and any possible European aggressor. Both of these seemed imperiled this week, and feats of Nazi bombers made the oceans seem less formidable.

From the president down, most Americans this week appeared willing to spend more for defense. It seemed assured that congress would vote $3,000,000,000 this session, and that "tremendous sums" would be asked later. On Wednesday the senate voted most of the money asked by the president for the army.

Congressmen got an inkling of the high cost of preparedness when they heard that an air force of 50,000 planes would add 555,000 more men (counting pilots, mechanics and ground crews) to the payrolls. At present the entire army and navy, counting air forces, consists of about 400,000 men.

Though support for a big defense program came from such Republicans as Herbert Hoover, Alfred Landon and Col. Frank Knox, some Americans offered cautions.

Col. Charles Lindbergh called for an end to "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion," and urged that the U. S. first "form with our neighboring nations a clear and definite policy of American defense."

Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, U. S. N., retired, said: "The Atlantic ocean still remains a large body of water and probability of plane attack from overseas . . . will remain remote for some time to come."

In getting down to details, congressmen heard proposals from House Naval Committee Chairman Vinson that—to eliminate "bottlenecks and delays"—the president be given power to:

1. Remove present competitive bidding on naval contracts,

2. Suspend wage and hour standards required of government contractors under the Walsh-Healey Act.

These proposals caused Labor Rep. Marcantonio to observe that "We're retracing the same path," as in the last war. Then, he said, workers lost many of their benefits. When Vinson's bill emerged from committee the provision to void the Walsh-Healey act was deleted.

Later the president said he hoped hours standards could be maintained so that unemployed could get jobs, that he doesn't want to see a single war millionaire created by the program. He appealed to both capital and labor for co-operation.

Coalition Cabinet?

Developments abroad and in Washington had politically-minded Republicans in hobbles. Thomas Dewey, Senator Taft and Wendell Willkie, Republicans who aspire to FDR's job, agreed that preparedness was a good idea, though Taft later charged the president with causing "needless excitement."

Some Republicans even suggested that the Republican convention—now set for June 24—be postponed till the war situation was "clarified."

21—Nazis at Abbeville, near English channel; 69 miles from Paris; 550,000 Allied troops in Belgium imperiled.

22—Allies say they retook Abbeville.

23—British admit armies split in two with Germans near coast. French still optimistic.

Ohio Anecdotes

Indian Village Sacked.

THE ANTECEDENT of the present village of Piqua, Miami county, was an older Indian village called Piqua, on the north side of the Mad river about five miles west of Springfield, which was sacked Aug. 8, 1780.

Gen. George Rogers Clark led his army against a combined tribal defense, part of which, the Mingo tribe, was led by the white renegade, Simon Girty.

Girty in the heat of the action declared it was folly to try to hold the town against men who acted so much like "madmen," and withdrew 300 Mingoes from the fray. The move broke the Indians' morale and a general rout ensued. Clark's men completely obliterated the town.

The town was not rebuilt, and its inhabitants moved to the present site of Piqua on the Great Miami river.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"To Make a Virtue of Necessity."

Long before they uttered the thought, humans, being human, made a virtue of necessity; but who expressed the idea earliest?

The record books indicate that the first was the first century Roman rhetorican Quintilian, who, in his Instruction of Oratory, wrote (in Latin, of course):

"We give to necessity the praise of virtue."

Following him there were, as was to be expected, many others; notably, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Burton, Dryden and Rabelais.

In his Canterbury Tales, Chaucer set the style for choice of phrasing in the form of "to make virtue of necessite."

And everybody else flattered him by adopting his syllables, almost letter by letter.

One-Minute Test.

1. Where is the Brenner Pass?
2. What is a monsoon?
3. How many days are there in a lunar month?

Words of Wisdom.

Temperance and labor are the two best physicians: the one sharpens the appetite—the other prevents indulgence to excess.—Rousseau.

Hints on Etiquette.

If you are going to spend a lot of time at a beach this summer, don't do your suntanning on the diving board. Some one might like to use it for diving, you know.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. In the Tyrol, between Bozen and Innsbruck.
2. A periodic wind in certain latitudes in the Indian ocean and southern Asia generally.
3. On an average of 29 days 12 hours, from new moon to new moon.

It's always the man who doesn't want credit who can get it for the asking.

There is only one way to acquire wisdom, but when it comes to making a fool of himself a man can have his choice of a thousand different ways.

At Home

Wheat Trouble.

When World war II began last September, the price of wheat soared. Up to this week, many a trader had a neat paper profit. German war successes this week caused speculators to fear a short war and to sell their wheat; prices skidded 30 cents to 86¾ cents a bushel.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace suggested a minimum price be set; American grain markets were quick to make this emergency move. No trading in wheat will be allowed at a price below the closing figures of May 18. On May 20 Secretary Wallace acted again to bolster prices by announcing the government would lend one cent more on a bushel of wheat this year than it did a year ago.

* * *

The Supreme Court upheld the 1937 National Bituminous Coal Act this week, ruled that the federal government has power "to undertake stabilization of an interstate industry through a process of price-fixing."

Aim of the law was to curb the "over-production and savage, competitive warfare," which, Justice Douglas said in the court's majority opinion, had "wasted" the bituminous coal industry.

* * *

Rubber and Oil.

In Atlantic City this week, Dr. Gustave Egloff told the American Institute of Chemists (1) that the U. S. can produce all its own rubber and "any conceivable amount" of explosives from its oil wells; (2) that the entire world production of crude oil since its discovery would not fill a cubic mile hole, which is an insignificant amount compared with the volume nature must hove produced.

Abroad

Scanning the Sky.

The British Isles have not been invaded successfully for nine centuries. Yet, this week, the London Daily Express warned: "Invasion of Britain is perfectly feasible." And Prime Minister Churchill stated that an air attack could now be taken for granted.

Sharpshooters began watching for parachutists as each Briton kept one eye on the sky. The attack would probably start, they heard, with a torrid bombing assault. That was to be followed by German attempts—through the use of thousands of air transports—to land 100,000 troops a day.

* * *

League Packs Its Bag.

Its gleaming white palaces threatened with destruction by the war it proved unable to prevent, the League of Nations prepared, this week, to move to Vichy, France, in case of the invasion of Switzerland. If France too seems threatened, the League will plod on to Lisbon, Portugal. And the non-political sections may even continue on to America.

* * *

Filling the Lebensraum.

An old word—Lebensraum—was given a new twist by Nazis last summer. They said that was what they needed more of. Since then, they have expanded their living room from 260,000 to 435,000 square mile. And this week Interior Minister Frick urged German women to have more babies. New lands being conquered, he said, could be exploited properly "only if we have enough persons capable of doing so."

Ex-Neighbors.

Only 26 months ago, Germany had 11 neighbors. Then, starting with Austria, Herr Hitler began striking out around his border in counter-clockwise fashion. Czecho-Slovakia, Memel, Poland, Danzig, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France. This week Switzerland, No. 11, noticed large German forces gathering near her border.

Science

FM's Debut.

"Frequency Modulation," a static-less broadcasting system of "bell-like clarity" devised by Major Edwin Armstrong of New York, operates on the ultra short waves below seven meters. This week the Federal Communications Commission set aside 35 wide channels—in wave band from 42 to 50 megacycles—for FM's commercial operation and five for non-commercial.

Describing FM as a "significant contribution to radio" FCC assured the 40,000,000 Americans owning standard receivers that, for at least several years, FM would be only an additional service to regular broadcasting. Standard broadcasting uses what is called "amplitude modulation." Manufacturers say new FM receivers are being designed to function—by the flip of a switch—on both systems.

Worrying Oneself Sick.

Worry—whether it's about debts, the stock market, or Europe's war—is apt to give you stomach ulcers, asthma, skin disorders or possibly even heart trouble. That's the opinion of famed Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston. He told the American Psychopathological Association, in Cincinnati, many psychiatrists are now certain that emotional upsets also upset the production of red blood cells.

Temperature: 112.

A red-headed "volcano" girl regularly runs a temperature of 112 degrees, believed to be the highest yet recorded in a human being, the American Psychiatric association, meeting in Cincinnati, heard. Cause: epilepsy of the pituitary gland.

In Short

Halted: Delivery of milk in Chicago, due to a wage dispute between dealers and drivers.

Smashed: Fascist Leader Sir Oswald Mosley's public address system by an angry crowd, when he attempted to chide the Allies in a politictl meeting at Middleton, England. Mosley was arrested.

Expected: An infant next September by Mrs. Fred Snite, jr. Snite has spent four years in an iron lung but in the past year has been able to leave the lung for a few hours daily by using a portable respirator.

Crushed: The main Japanese force in central China, during a battle at Tsaoyang, Japan's base in northern Hupeh province, according to Chinese sources. They claimed also a Japanese base in south Honan.

MISS FISHER BRIDE OF PETER ZIMMERMAN

Formal Ceremony Performed By Msgr. R. C. Goebel at St. Peter's Catholic Church Early This Morning.

MISS KATHERINE NANCY FISHER became the bride of Peter Adam Zimmerman at 9:30 o'clock this morning before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church. Msgr. R. C. Goebel performed the ceremony, and Raymond Baum presided at the organ.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, 397 Buffalo street, was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of paper white faille taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice and waistline. The bouffant skirt of the dress was attached to a full hipline yoke with ruching, giving the effect of hoops. The full, short sleeves were finished with bows of the same material, and the neckline was sweetheart style Her double, circular fingertip veil was attached to a headpiece of orange blossoms. The former Miss Fisher carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias, lilies-of-the-valley and white roses, and her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Rose Huck was the maid-of-honor, and Miss Ann Zimmerman was the bridesmaid. These attendants wore silk chiffon dresses of like styles made with girdled waistlines and dirndl skirts. The square necklines of the gowns were tied with halters of velvet ribbon, which cascaded in streamers over the fitted bodices. Both wore Mary of Scot bonnets of matching illusion with the waistline veils in back. Miss Huck's gown was of a magnetic blue shade with yellow trim, and she carried a colonial bouquet of Talisman roses, sweetpeas and bachelor buttons which were predominantly aqua in tone. Miss Zimmerman wore opaline yellow with blue trim, and her bouquet of the same flowers had a yellow color note.

Joseph Zimmerman was the bridegroom's best man, and the ushers were Mathias Fisher and Fabian Folmer. Mr. Zimmerman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zimmerman, 388 Grace street.

Mrs. Fisher wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and shoulder corsage of red roses for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Zimmerman was attired in a green silk print dress with black and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was also of red roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at noon at the Women's Club, after which the bridal pair left for a short eastern trip. For traveling, Mrs. Zimmerman wore a navy blue and white bolero suit with matching accessories and a picture hat of natural straw trimmed in navy blue ribbon. Pink roses formed her shoulder corsage. The couple will reside at the Buffalo street address upon returning to the city.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman attended Mansfield Senior high school, and they are employed now at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Elect Mrs. Smith New President of Red Cross Group

Mrs. M L. Smith was elected to the presidency of the Red Cross Production Unit No. 1 yesterday when Mrs. Walter Becker, Andover road, entertained with the assistance of Mrs. Leopold Adams and Mrs. Ray Painter. There were 11 present for the 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. Edwin Eichin was named secretary, and Mrs. Becker will continue to serve as treasurer.

Arrangements were made to fulfill the third quota and it was announced that work rooms have been opened at 14 West Fourth street. These rooms will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week throughout the summer.

Yesterday the unit cut out dresses and made layette patterns. Plans were discussed for a midsummer party at which husbands of members will be guests. Mrs. John Pierce and Mrs. Charles Arbaugh are in charge.

Patricia Lybarger New Head of Little Mozarts

Officers of the Little Mozarts club were elected yesterday when Margery Huber, Carpenter road, entertained 23 members. Patricia Lybarger is the new president. Others named are Jane Mange, vice president; Betty Lou Miller, secretary; Doris Alverson, assistant secretary; Susan Biddle, treasurer; Eleanor Matthes, assistant treasurer.

A program of piano and violin numbers was given by Ruth Copeland, Patricia and Marian Gilbert. Bob Gandart gave a paper on the childhood of George Gershwin. The next meeting will be a picnic June 14 at Walton lake with Phyllis Smith.

MEET AT HALL.

Members of the Past Councilors association of the Daughters of America met in regular session yesterday afternoon with Miss Mary Beilstein in charge. Cards were played, and Mrs. Elizabeth Croskey and her committee were in charge of the dinner which was served at 6 o'clock. The next meeting will be June 21.

Pythian Sisters Entertain With Banquet at Park

There were 44 members and guests of the Pythian Sisters in attendance at a mother and daughter party last evening in the pavilion at North Lake park. A covered-dish dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock. The committee in charge included Mrs. Ethel Metz, Mrs. Alta Ruby, Mrs. Etta Kearns, Mrs. LaDoris Hess, Mrs. Irene Smith and Mrs. Ethel Smith.

Mrs. Matilda Cloud, the oldest mother present, who was 84, was presented with a gift in honor of the occasion. Miss Helen Hess opened the evening's program with a toast to the mothers. Mrs. Louise Koerper responded with a toast to the daughters. A toast to the grandmothers was given then by Miss Ilene Hoffman.

Miss Norma Jean Hess played a violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Miss Wanda Hess. The musical portion of the program was continued with songs by a vocal trio, composed of Miss Gladys Kerr, Miss Ada May Harbaugh and Miss Wanda Hess. Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine played the piano accompaniment. Miss Louise Chevallard closed the program with a reading. Prizes, in the games which followed, were won by Mrs. Noel Smith, Mrs. C. N. Kime and Mrs. Edward Burghard.

The next regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters will be held in the K. of P. hall on June 14.

Pavonia Club Has Literary Program

Mrs Clinton Burkholder entertained members of the Pavonia Garden club yesterday at her home. During the business meeting the group discussed the project of landscaping and beautifying the Pavonia church and cemetery grounds.

Tentative plans were made for a garden club tour and tea. Last night's program was a paper on "Famous Local People" by Mrs. Howard Hyatt. Contests were conducted with Mrs. Foster Groff and Mrs. Fred Buxton winning.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Groff and Mrs. Robert Eggerton. The hostess gave each member gladioli bulbs as favors. The next meeting, the date of which was not announced, will be with Mrs. Buxton.

Re-Name Officers of Busy Bee Club for Year

Officers of the Busy Bee club were re-elected to serve for another year during a meeting yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. Earl Black on Woodland road. Mrs. Mary Somers was the associate hostess. These officers include: Mrs. May Diesem, president; Mrs. Thomas Long, vice president; Mrs. Lial Ish, secretary; Mrs. Bessie Sheets, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Wingert, floral chairman.

Bunco was the diversion, with prizes going to Mrs. George Bistline, Mrs. Nellie Antes and Mrs. Clara Calver. Dogwood decorated the tables, when a two-course luncheon was served. Mrs. Clyde Charles has invited the group to her home on Park avenue east for the meeting of June 7, when Mrs. Gust Schill will be the associate hostess.

Dolly Madison Officers at Anniversary Tea

Service League Holds Benefit at Mrs. Imhoff's

Members of the Service League sponsored a benefit bridge party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. E. Imhoff, 248 Park avenue west. There were 21 tables of the diversion in progress, and a prize was awarded for each table. Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh, Mrs. V. E. Vining, Mrs. R. D. Campbell and Mrs. Martin Frank were recipients of other prizes.

Mrs. J. F. Daley was general chairman for the affair, assisted by Mrs. Wayne McFadden, Mrs G. M. Arbaugh, Mrs. Robert R. Black and Mrs. L. D. Wright. Proceeds will be used in the League's general fund to aid the indigent.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, May 26.

Sunday's horoscope is a forecast of much steadfast and serious progress in the direction of advancement, preferment, esteem and perhaps dignities at the hands of superiors, employers and those in high place of power and prestige. The intellectual and studious faculties are, active and aspiring despite much profundity.

Those whose birthday it is may look for recognition and reward from superiors and those in high places, who may proffer promotion, preferment and tokens of esteem and confidence, possibly in connection with literary or professional versatility and adaptability. These should be sought despite certain ideas of modesty, restraint or limitation. Pessimism should be resolutely routed.

For Monday, May 27.

Monday's astrological forecast is for some tenacious obstacles or thwarting situations which it will be difficult to break loose, especially if too much tempest and high pressure of a rash or drastic quality be brought to bear. Since the higher faculties are unusually keyed up and sagacious it would be best to think through rather than hammer through. Let moderation rather than force prevail.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter some turbulent and frustrating circumstances, which it will be difficult to combat. This had best be done by clear and patient thinking rather than impulsive and violent attack,

HAVE LUNCHEON.

There were nine members of the Priscillian club present at the Women's Club yesterday when Mrs. L. H. Beam entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon. Current events were given by the members. The table was decorated with pastel tinted tulips. Mrs. W. P. Close will entertain at the Women's Club June 7.

GARDEN CLUBS PLAN LUNCHEON ON JUNE 6

Mrs. Dorothy Biddle Will Be Guest Speaker; Special Summer Session Will Be Held at Westbrook Country Club.

IT'S A FUTURE EVENT that's the basis for much interest in garden club circles today, as the various groups report plans for the joint meeting which will be held June 6 at the Westbrook Country club. Mrs. Dorothy Biddle, well-known authority on garden problems, decorations and horticulture, will speak following the 1 o'clock luncheon to be served at the club. Members of the Astowela Garden club are hostesses.

Yesterday that group met with Mrs. Neil Remy, West Third street. Mrs. John Finefrock was associate hostess. Slides showing the havoc wrought by soil erosion were shown, and Mrs. L. W. Birch gave the commentary.

Luncheon was served following the business meeting and program with Mrs. C. V. McConnell presiding at the table which was decorated with a centerpiece of lilacs and tulips.

* * *

Mrs. Thornton Lake, Mrs. Thomas Siegenthaler and Mrs. B. B. Drummond volunteered to assist Mrs. A. M. Colby with the judging of school gardens at the meeting of the Buckeye Garden club yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. B. H. Goodenough, 241 Abbyfeale road.

A paper was presented by Mrs. Gene Zediker on "Annuals," and luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. The group planned to join the other clubs in the city for the luncheon at the Country club.

* * *

Mrs. Alan Tappan gave a talk on "What I Saw In Mexico" which she illustrated with movies at the meeting of the Mansfield Garden club with Mrs. Paul Sturges, 560 Overlook road, yesterday. Mrs. Louis Bromfield was associate hostess.

Bermuda and its gardens was the subject about which Mrs. William Bowers spoke. She also showed movies. Luncheon was served and Mrs. George Draffan and Mrs. Carl Routzahn presided at the table.

* * *

There were 17 members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club present at the home of Mrs. J. W. MacLean, Lexington avenue, yesterday to hear Mrs. A. W. Meihack review "Flowering Earth" by Donald Peattie. When luncheon was served Mrs. Henry Sanford and Mrs. Harold Bruce poured.

* * *

Mrs. I. L. Bronson and Mrs. J. B. Conard presided at the luncheon table which was decorated with a lily-of-the-valley centerpiece yesterday when Mrs. Todd J. Patton, Arlington avenue, entertained the Cottage Garden club with Mrs. L. K. Baxter assisting. A routine business meeting was conducted and Hrs. Ernest Ihrig gave the paper "Preparation and Care of Roses."

* * *

A report of the Flower and Garden Appreciation course which was held early this month at the Higbee company in Cleveland was given yesterday by Mrs. George Price at the meeting of the Town and Country Garden club at the home of Mrs. Robert Stevens, Park avenue west road. Mrs. K. L. Woodman reported the flower show which was held at Toledo last week-end.

Mrs. H. W. Gibbs, conservation chairman, announced that there are 125 different varieties of wild flowers on the wild-flower trail. "Aviation in My Garden" was the title of the paper given by Mrs. M. J. Cole in which she gave various methods of attracting birds to the garden.

When a buffet luncheon was served at 1 o'clock Mrs. Woodman and Mrs. Ralph Emerson presided at the table. A bouquet of lillies-of-the-valley, narcissi, and nertinsia decorated the table. All of the club will meet again June 6 at the Country club for the joint luncheon.

Club Entertains at Inn; Program Given

There were 21 members and four guests, Msr. Donald Hout, Miss Aleen Hout, Miss Beverly Landis and Miss Jane Brindle, present at the meeting of the Buena Vista club at the Apple Lane Inn. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock at a long table decorated with garden flowers.

Mrs. L. F. Hout was in charge of the business meeting, and later in the afternoon a gift was presented to Mrs. S. E. Harlan who will soon leave the community. A program followed with Mrs. Ray Hout and Mrs. Roy Brindle in charge. They gave a program on Mother's Day and Decoration Day, and Mrs. George Weimer read a poem. The next meeting will be June 27 with Mrs. Brindle, Crider road.

CHAPTER XIX

"You said you'd been there," Brooke said.

"Yes. With my mother. I have a grandmother I'd like you to meet, if . . ." his full mouth pulled at one corner and one brow went up. "if she can tear herself away from my father. My stepfather, rather. They've taken a house in Beverly Hills. How long will you be in Los Angeles?"

"Three days exactly."

Tony looked like a little boy asking a forbidden thing. "Long enough to get away for a swim and meet my mother?"

"I can't promise yet."

When their cocktails came, he said, "My going home is a sort of surprise package. They hadn't counted on my intrusion." He raised the glass and smiled at her. "To a lovely girl named Brooke, who is very quiet and polite while I talk about myself. Who are you, ma'am?"

"I'm a girl from New Hampshire with a job . . ."

"That's not a job," Tony said indignantly. "That's a charge . . ."

"On the contrary, it's a good job that takes one to Hawaii."

"How is she?"

"She's old and tired, and I don't think she's ever been happy."

"Oh, surely she has been. She was young once and when you're young, you're happy often with and without reasons. When I'm old I hope I can remember that I was happy."

"Idealist?" Brooke asked.

He laughed. "What are you? No, wait. . . ." He looked straight at her. "I think you're a disappointed idealist. There are times when there's great sadness in your face and not a little bitterness. At other times it's a face that's thoughtful and . . . untouched." Again the look of obvious approbation followed by a chuckle. "And you've got the longest eyelashes I've ever seen."

* * *

Before they went to dinner she knew that he was as interested in sports as in graduate work in history, that he had traveled extensively with his mother, of whom he spoke as if she were a dear companion, and that his early life had been spent in a series of schools and camps. Of his mother he said, "She knows scores of people everywhere and is too restless to stay in one place very long. She can appear as helpless as a baby one minute and the next arise to meet the worst crisis alone. I've seen her do it. She's amazing."

Brooke was sorry when the hour ended and Tony apologized for talking so much about himself. She felt festive and exhilarated walking beside him to the dining-room, pausing to meet an attractive couple to whom Tony introduced her. With Harriet dining with the bearded gentleman, they found Bill alone, leaning back in his chair to explain to a portly dowager the breed of the dog he was taking to California. The dining room was ablaze with light and Brooke thought how thoroughly Jim would approve of the orchestra's selection of a Strauss waltz.

When the dinner was over and she said that she must go to Mrs. Kingsbury, Tony said that he would wait for her despite Bill's admonish that he was monopolizing her and that he strenuously objected.

When Mrs. Kingsbury saw her, she said, "Enjoying yourself, aren't you?"

Brooke smiled. "This one day makes me appreciate your love of travel by sea."

As she gave Brooke a book, the old lady looked sad. Closing her eyes, relaxing her white head on the pillow, she sighed. "Ah, but it can become a disease."

* * *

From the warmth and friendliness of Tony to the evil eyes of a merciless killer Brooke went that hour while she read. Mrs. Kingsbury lay with her eyes closed and did not open them even when Ellen tiptoed in and motioned to Brooke that she need read no longer.

Free again, she went for her velvet wrap and followed the music. Not seeing Tony when she reached the ballroom, she went on deck. The beauty of the night was unbelievable, the stars seemingly close enough to pluck from a clear, cloudless sky, the waves overlapping, playfully. The spray moistened her face and cooled it as she walked, stirred by a sense of the unknown into which the great liner was driving. In this vastness of sea and sky small grievances, prejudices and hurt fell away, she thought. You could think here. You might even plan your life life again so that the unknown would not intimidate you. And most of all you felt alive again, conscious of expectancy, conscious of beauty. The world that had been in mourning had sprung to colorful life again.

Sometime before she reached him, she knew that the lone silhouette was Tony. And he, hearing the rhythm of the silver heels on the deck, turned and spoke before she reached him.

"I promised to wait, didn't I?" was Tony's greeting. "It hasn't been an hour, has it?"

Brooke laughed quietly and pointed to the sea. "That's timeless, Tony. That's why you didn't know."

He chuckled. "That, yes, and the inadvisability of taking a smelly pipe inside. Makes you pensive, doesn't it? Not the pipe—the sea. You can stand for hours, just looking, fascinated. It's a good place to solve important problems. My mother says it makes me melancholy and philosophical and that I have only to look at the sea to preach on injustice, morality and the evils permeating the civilized world." He said thoughtfully, "My mother likes the clash of symbols so loud and constant that she never hears the sad echo. But I've told her often that she wears a false smile."

Brook said, "You're an odd son for a gay mother to have."

"I'm like my father, they tell me. He died for a principle—in vain, I'm afraid. The first idealist. . . ."

He was silent for a moment.

"If you could only live your life as you play a game, hard and clean and with good teamwork." He looked down at Brooke and in the faint light she saw his smile. "Shall we dance? Bill says I'm unfair when there are a hundred conquests ready to be conquered."

He danced, as Rod danced, with casual grace. Bill motioned for them to join him and the heavy-lidded blonde in white who in bored tones revealed that she was the wife of a motion picture producer and the mother of twins. Across the room Harriet wiggled her fingers for recognition and beamed upon the bearded chap. Tony said he had a sinister squint. Brooke danced with the amiable Bill, promised to see his blue-ribbon winner dog the next day, reminisced with him on summer in Maine, and promised not to give all her evenings to Tony.

* * *

She could say to herself now in all honesty that she was happy again and even if this happiness were only the fleeting sort, she would sustain it until the journey's end. Responsive to color and music, her face was radiant and she felt light as down when Bill reluctantly released her to Tony again. It was good—good! She wanted to say to the handsome sensitive face close to hers, "Do you know how long it's been since I felt like this? Idon't feel beaten down and defeated tonight! And I'm not afraid of what's coming next. Tony, your touch isn't like your dancing—casual."

She looked up and smiled at him.

Tony said, 'Nice perfume, m'm."

'A seafaring cousin brought it to me a year ago."

"So you had salty forbears, too? That accounts for the faraway look in your eyes—as if you've seen the sun rise on many horizons."

After midnight they walked around the deck once more before he said a lingering good night outside her cabin. Gently he put in place a strand of her hair that had been blown askew and smiled so tenderly that her heart stirred.

"Good night, Brooke." His eyes took in al of her as he said happily, "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow . . ."

"I like to think about it, too . . ."

She went in, smiling, wondering if as yet she would admit to herself that Tony was falling in love with her, wondering if she wanted him to be in love with her, knowing that though she liked to be with, she was not in love with him.

She saw him in the morning and nearly every moment after that when she was free. She swam with him every afternoon after Mrs. Kingsbury had had sufficient air and returned to her cabin, danced with him each night, and walked countless miles around the deck with him. She spent a delightful day with him in Havana. She told him much of her New England life and her family, but she told him nothing about Rod. She came to know Tony better, too: to know that he could be as melancholy as he could be gay.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

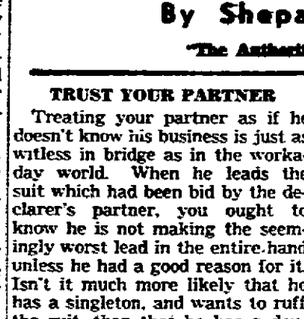
"The Authority on Authorities"

TRUST YOUR PARTNER

Treating your partner as if he doesn't know his business is just as witless in bridge as in the workaday world. When he leads the suit which had been bid by the declarer's partner, you ought to know he is not making the seemingly worst lead in the entire hand unless he had a good reason for it. Isn't it much more likely that he has a singleton, and wants to ruff the suit, than that he has a doubleton? If you figure it that way, you will return the suit to him instead of upsetting yourself thinking about what a bad lead he made.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East

"Why in blazes did he do that?" thought East after West led the club 8. "He knows from my No Trump bid that I have the clubs stopped. But my tricks could come later. Why does he knock out my stoppers as soon as he can and set up the dummy's suit for discards?"

Then, after North played low, he took the trick with his Q. South playing the 7, East noted that the 6 had not appeared, so reckoned West had held a doubleton. He therefore returned a heart and the contract was made. The defenders took only two tricks in each black suit, plus the diamond K.

East should have figured thus: "West certainly would not have made such a bad lead as a doubleton of the dummy's suit. He must have had a singleton." Had he done this and led his club 5 to the second trick, then another club when he got in with a spade, his side would have scored one more trick and would have beaten the contract.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"No, we cannot wait any longer for anything," he said, consulting his watch. "But I do hope he can be found soon. Have you told Jim to have my son come directly to this room as soon as he is found?"

"I impressed that upon both Jim and Katie," Lillian said with the evident determination to "tell a good one" while she had the opportunity. "They will send him here the instant they catch a glimpse of him."

He ran an experienced eye over the players and consulted the first pages of his copy of the play.

"You are all in your proper stations, I see," he began. "Mrs. Graham, will you bring your script and sit here, please?"

He indicated a chair for me, near the one beside which he was standing, and in which, as most of us knew from experience of him, he would sit only at brief intervals during the rehearsal. When he had put me into the chair with meticulous courtesy, he spoke again to me, but in tones which all the others could hear.

"You will be in the best position here," he said, "not only to observe the players but to prompt any one of them who may need such assistance, but I doubt that you will have any prompting to do."

He turned to the players, who were all watching him closely.

"You are all familiar with your roles, I take it," he said, and added, "You would better be, if you know what's good for you."

There was a chorus of acquiescence, which I knew spelled accuracy, for everyone who knows Philip Veritzen also knows that he will not forgive an actor who is unfamiliar with his lines.

"In this first rehearsal, I shall make no suggestions," he went on. "You will go through with your lines from the start to finish without interruption. Mrs. Graham and I will make mental notes, if necessary, but we shall do no actual writing which will district you. Mrs. Graham's memory is phenomenal, and my experience will serve me I hope."

I knew that Lillian and Nancy Carew, who had known the great producer longer than any of the rest of us, must be suppressing smiles at this understatement, for it is a rare moment indeed when Philip Veritzen makes a written note at a rehearsal of one of his plays.

"Miss Aldrich and Miss Howard"—he addressed the two women whose jealousy of Mary I had noted—"you are on the stage when the curtain goes up. Will you consider the curtain has just gone up now, and will the rest of you take your cues and make your various entrances promptly?"

Miss Aldrich spoke her first lines, Miss Howard hers, and the rehearsal was in full swing. Everything was to lead up to Mary's entrance, and I kept my eyes upon her anxiously as she stood erect against the farther door. The lines which were the cue for her entrance were delivered by Mr. Redfield, but before Mary could speak her first word, Mr. Veritzen spoke her name.

"Mrs. Veritzen," he said, and paused, while Mary's hands clenched at her sides. "I must contradict a former direction of mine. Will you be so good as to discard the rendition upon which you and I had agreed? I find that I prefer the one in which Mrs. Graham has so capably drilled you."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—even if there isn't a state highway patrolman in sight.

"Poetry week" comes to an end and wastebaskets will resume merely their customary overflow.

Macaulay thought the British government might some day be in New Zealand, but the present administration, remembering that it has been in London for 2,000 years, is in no hurry to move even as far as Canada.

Industrial Co-operation Assured

QUICK assurance of industrial co-operation with defensive plans of government encourages belief that, however great the requirements, the United States will be able to speed up production of planes and other war equipment needed to guard this country against invasion by any hostile power.

It cannot be doubted that the ingenuity, scope and production facilities of American industries are sufficient to meet any demands that may be made upon them at a time when, as was said yesterday, "our very lives and liberties may be involved."

What will be needed, however, is such co-ordination of industrial production for defense purposes as can be attained only through the capable direction of competent men, selected on the basis of experience in large scale production methods.

Tasks of such magnitude cannot be safely entrusted to political officeholders who have no knowledge of industrial management or the intricacies of mass production.

And, in addition to the co-operation of heads of industries, it is also essential that President Roosevelt and the United States government be accorded the whole hearted support of labor leaders and all members of their organizations, for without this there could be a serious hampering of the nation's defense program.

As is now being demonstrated in Europe, where small countries are being invaded, thousands killed, cities destroyed and millions of persons in the role of helpless refugees, things that seem important in normal times are of minor consequence when life and liberty are threatened.

In considering the problems which now confront the American people it is actual conditions that must be dealt with, not the theories of those who envision world peace as something that can be accomplished by wishes and hopes.

A united America, equipped to defend itself against the machinery of modern warfare, is the best guarantee of national and individual safety.

New World's Greater Vigor

PROFESSOR RAYMOND PEARL, biologist of Johns Hopkins university, told the American Scientific Congress recently that population is increasing more rapidly in this hemisphere than in the Old World, partly because of superior vigor.

"It appears that the population of the Western Hemisphere have a more favorable age distribution," he said, "for the production of goods for living and wealth, for further growth, for a progressive and hopeful outlook on life and its problems, and for health, than do the aggregate populations of either the Eastern Hemisphere or Oceania.

"The peoples of the New World should establish national population policies, based upon scientific principles, to the end that the benefits associated with the present relatively superior position may not be too rapidly dissipated and lost."

At any rate, the American peoples should push public health work, preventive medicine, sanitary measures, and so on. And they should make sure that longer life will be worth living by solving the economic problems of distribution, production and employment. Such steps will make it easier finally to solve the social problems of education, recreation and racial tolerance.

China's Co-operative Revival

THE RECUPERATION of China began, says Nym Wales in the Nation, when a little group of refugee blacksmiths set up a co-operative foundry in an inland village of Shensi province. That was the beginning of Chinese Industrial Co-operatives.

The Japanese invaders heard of it, and decided to stop the movement. They sent a bombing squadron and destroyed the foundry. But the blacksmiths gathered up the wreckage and rebuilt it, this time and every succeeding time in the likeness of a house, to all appearances like other houses, so that flying bombers could not find them.

So the people have revived and created industries in small units, by the co-operative method, to an extent that is expected to be the economic salvation of China. It takes astonishingly little money. For $50 they can launch a surgical gauze co-op, for $100 a candle-making unit, for $200 a cotton-weaving unit, and so on. A $700 co-op will employ 100 workmen, says Mr. Wales, and $7 will give a man a permanent job.

"Nowhere else on earth," he concludes, "can so much be done with so little. For the cost of one battleship America could finance enough industry in China to keep its armies fighting indefinitely, and that loan could eventually be repaid instead of being scrapped like a battleship."

More Nazis In Mexico

AT A TIME when it might be supposed that all Germans were needed at home, for the Nazi army or its supply system, it is surprising to hear from Mexico City that groups of Germans are entering that country. There are more than in normal times, the reports say.

Americans naturally wonder whether these are legitimate immigrants and business agents, or whether they represent a "fifth column" designed to foster Mexican hostility to the United States.

Unimportant Land Found

REAR ADMIRAL BYRD, just back to report on his latest explorations in Antarctica, says his expedition found new lands, but adds that they are of doubtful commercial or strategic advantage. The expedition mapped 900 miles of unknown coastline and made other discoveries which apparently will be of more interest to scientists, geographers and meteorologists than to diplomats and militarists.

This means that flags planted there to claim possession for one nation or another need not lead to international disputes and quarrels. By the time such areas become important, mankind may have learned to co-operate in their use.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"What about Kaltenborn?" asks J. R. M. of Moultrie, Ga. "His voice sounds German, though I get the impression he wants to be friendly to the Allies. I listen to his broadcasts all the time."

Well, H. V. Kaltenborn is a mild and friendly though energetic man with iron gray hair and blue eyes. He is just an inch under six feet, and he weighs about 190 pounds. He is 62 years old. Such an age may seem advanced when considered in cold print, but when you take into account his tennis activities you seldom think of him as elderly. Kaltenborn is champion of the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, New York, and he has never been defeated.

* * *

SOMETIMES on his broadcasts you get the idea that he has visited a good many places and talked with a good many important people. It is seldom that a city or a country figures in the news with which he is not intimately acquainted. He is one of the very few foreigners who has ever been permitted to broadcast from a radio station in Moscow. He has broadcast interviews with Hitler, Mussolini, Mahatma Gandhi, and Chiang Kai-shek. Once he was captured by Chinese bandits and held for ransom. He was the first man in history to cover a battle—the attack upon Irun, Spain—with a microphone.

So you can see that when Hans Kaltenborn — that's his name, Hans—sits down in his broadcasting booth to analyze the news for you, he has at least a speaking acquaintance with most of the leading principals to start with. He has traveled through foreign countries and probed through European capitals so long that now he is one of the best informed men on European affairs in this country.

There is German blood in his veins, though he is as American as you or your brother. He hates war and he abhors totalitarian aggression. He was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and he began his career as a partner of his father in the building materials business.

* * *

BUT that didn't last very long for the reason that the Spanish-American war came along and he enlisted. He came out of the war a top sergeant and at once got on a cattle boat bound for Europe. This was the beginning of his "international" restlessness and probably was the first of scores of journeys to all parts of the world. Once, for a while, he saw life as a travelling salesman in France. Before that he was a reporter. Eventually he went to Berlin as secretary of the Harvard Professional exchange. Kaltenborn is a Harvard man, and he graduated cum laude. He also wears a Phi Beta Kappa key.

His office at NBC is just a plain, everyday desk in the news room. I happened to have been up their yesterday and noticed on his desk a type-written list of foreign cities, with their correct pronunciations listed after them. They were, I suppose, to facilitate him in handling those tongue-twisters on his broadcasts. He spends two or three hours daily up there, sorting out his material and arranging it in the order he desires. After that he steps int a room off to one side and makes his broadcasts. Then he goes home to a nice hot dinner, at No. 9 Garden Place, Brooklyn, which Mrs. Kaltenborn always has ready for him.

AFTER A TWENTY-YEAR NAP

Pan-America Prefers Democracy

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON is very well satisfied with evidences of the Pan America's determination to remain democratic no matter what happens in Europe.

All advices from capitals of the southern republics are to the effect that liberty-loving elements in their part of the new world simply have been strengthened by recent German successes, in their resolve to keep totalitarianism from gaining a foothold in our hemisphere.

If there's any southern country concerning which Washington, most confidentially, has been a trifle uneasy, it's Mexico. Congressman Martin Dies, for instance, has suggested that un-American propaganda is dangerously prevalent just below the Rio Grande.

However, Josephus Daniels, our ambassador in Mexico City, who probably is as good a judge as Congressman Dies, says it isn't. The ambassador, temporarily away from his post on a visit home, reports that, while there's a Mexican Communistic party, it isn't strong, and that Nazi-ism is unpopular in the republic.

Furthermore, he mentions that, if the Dies committee knows anything more of totalitarian plotting on Mexico's side of the border than the Mexican government knows, the latter government will be glad to be enlightened. This doesn't sound particularly undemocratic so far as Mexico is concerned.

Of course, Yankee-Mexican relations have been somewhat strained by the oil controversy, but that doesn't in the least imply that Mexico is totalitarian.

Emphatically Neutral.

Argentina, Uruguay and Panama have been quicker than Uncle Sam has been to resent overseas disregard of American neutrality. They were prompt to take offense at the landing of British and French marines in the Dutch West Indies. We were disposed to wink at it. They are almost more neutral than we are. They're so neutral that they verge on being willing to fight for neutrality.

They're for Pan-American solidarity, anyhow. If it does have to be fought for, Uncle Sam will have to do the fighting—not the Pan Americas in their entirety. Still, they're in favor of it.

Germany's quite strong on the South American east coast. A couple of Brazil's southern states are nearly wholly German. They'd like to Nazify the entire country. But the very fact that they're so Nazificated makes the rest of Brazil hate them. And the anti-Nazi greatly predominate throughout the country elsewhere.

Italians are thick in Argentina. The newspaper with the largest Argentine circulation is an Italian-language daily—La Patria degli Italiani of Buenos Aires. But the country's so violently anti-Fascist that I've seen anti-Fascist riots there, in which hundreds were killed. I had to hunt my hole myself.

The Latin-American west coast hasn't so many Germans, Italians or any Russians, to speak of at all. But there they're afraid of the Japanese. Their reasoning is about what ours used to be when we were cursing Oriental "cheap labor."

Only, now, they discuss military conquest as well as cheap labor.

Getting Practical.

The whole thing's this:

It's simmering down to a practicality.

The Americas, south of the United States, hate their dictatorships.

They're getting to be democratic.

In short, we're becoming a truly democratic hemisphere.

Taken individually, we always have been theoretically democratic. But, country by country; not collectively.

Listen, World!

Are Working Wives Wrecking Marriage?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE RANEE OF SARAWAK started it. Remember those gibes at our American "women's rights"?

"In gaining equality they've succeeded only in giving men more freedom. . . . The Malay women have more real equality than American wives. . . . Emancipation for American women means frustration for their men, 'who look either exhausted, or frightened—intimidated by a swarm of intellectual women."

And more and meaner words to the same effect, which you'd think would have irked the local lassies plenty. Yet already the Rajah's Missis is getting a round of applause. With "An Old-fashioned Grandmother" leading the chorus.

"She's absolutely right!" says Gram. "I grew up in the days before suffrage, when a woman's only 'job' lay in her own home or her father's, or some school room. I admit I thought enviously of a wider freedom and was as enthusiastic over the prospect of Women's Rights as anyone. But, looking back, comparing those earlier homes with the ones I see today, I realize what a mistake I made.

"I honestly believe that the typical American wife of 1880 had more real power and freedom—and far less anxiety—than the married woman of today. She may not have a vote or a career, but she had a home and a husband who felt responsible for that home.

"Modern girls forget what every old-fashioned girl 'constantly remembered—that marriage is an 'acquired habit' with men. They have to be coaxed into it, then flattered to make them stay. A man used to stick by his home because it was his personal possession. His pride was wrapped up in it . . . his standing as a man was based on it. But when women began taking jobs and sharing expenses, that attitude changed. Men no longer felt the same responsibility—and soon showed it.

"You can see the results everywhere today. I have a very bright granddauhgter who insisted on keeping her fine position after marriage. It did seem foolish for her to give up such a splendid salary, although I secretly feared she would lose more than a pay check unless she did.

"My fears were justified. Within three months her husband lost his job. He could easily have obtained one that was not quite so good—and I am sure he would have done so if his wife had not been working. But they both decided that her salary would tide them over 'until something better turns up.' They are still waiting for it to turn up. In the meantime, their home is going on the rocks.

"Her faith in him has turned to bitterness. She is ashamed of her 'idle husband.' She does not see that by holding a position herself, she robbed him of his! It was not only his duty, but his right as a husband to carry that load. But when she lifted it from him, he became indifferent.

"I firmly believe in young girls working. It is not only necessary from a financial viewpoint, but it also helps them understand their husbands' world. But I am convinced that Working Wives are wrecking marriage."

An Old-Fashioned Grandmother. So the battle's on. And if you've a come-back, now's the time to mail it in.

Timely Editorial

Bridge Privileges.

The ruling of a San Jose divorce court, that it is not cruelty if a wife kicks her husband under the bridge table, is, we think, in line with the general state of judicial feeling. When bridge gets along to the kicking phase, it becomes an occupation, and a few boots in the shins in the course of an evening's hard play are no more than occupational hazards.

One of the big leagues' outstanding catchers is a bridge player of parts in the off season and, we are given to understand, goes on wearing his leg armor all winter, for some of the most successful players are as cruelly scarred below the knees as any dub. The quality of one's game is, of itself, no protection. In California, the husband had trumped the little woman's ace—usually cited as a crime justifying everything up to electrocution; but a trump may very well be the correct play on partner's ace. We should like to know more about the hand.—Detroit News.

Daily Bible Thought

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasurers are there is your heart also.—Matthew 6:19:21.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE PEOPLE of Germany spend a third of their national income on military upkeep. In contrast, United States citizens—feeling secure behind two big green oceans—grudgingly allow one-fortieth of their paycheck to be spent on defense.

For that money they've been able to buy a one-ocean navy, a small air force and a nucleus of an army. These seemed enough when a community of friendly powers (and the British navy) lay between America and any possible European aggressor. Both of these seemed imperiled this week, and feats of Nazi bombers made the oceans seem less formidable.

From the president down, most Americans this week appeared willing to spend more for defense. It seemed assured that congress would vote $3,000,000,000 this session, and that "tremendous sums" would be asked later. On Wednesday the senate voted most of the money asked by the president for the army.

Congressmen got an inkling of the high cost of preparedness when they heard that an air force of 50,000 planes would add 555,000 more men (counting pilots, mechanics and ground crews) to the payrolls. At present the entire army and navy, counting air forces, consists of about 400,000 men.

Though support for a big defense program came from such Republicans as Herbert Hoover, Alfred Landon and Col. Frank Knox, some Americans offered cautions.

Col. Charles Lindbergh called for an end to "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion," and urged that the U. S. first "form with our neighboring nations a clear and definite policy of American defense."

Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, U. S. N., retired, said: "The Atlantic ocean still remains a large body of water and probability of plane attack from overseas . . . will remain remote for some time to come."

In getting down to details, congressmen heard proposals from House Naval Committee Chairman Vinson that—to eliminate "bottlenecks and delays"—the president be given power to:

1. Remove present competitive bidding on naval contracts.

2. Suspend wage and hour standards required of government contractors under the Walsh-Healey Act.

These proposals caused Labor Rep. Marcantonio to observe that "We're retracing the same path," as in the last war. Then, he said, workers lost many of their benefits. When Vinson's bill emerged from committee the provision to void the Walsh-Healey act was deleted.

Later the president said he hoped hours standards could be maintained so that unemployed could get jobs, that he doesn't want to see a single war millionaire created by the program. He appealed to both capital and labor for co-operation.

Coalition Cabinet?

Developments abroad and in Washington had politically-minded Republicans in hobbles. Thomas Dewey, Senator Taft and Wendell Willkie, Republicans who aspire to FDR's job, agreed that preparedness was a good idea, though Taft later charged the president with causing "needless excitement."

Some Republicans even suggested that the Republican convention—now set for June 24—be postponed till the war situation was "clarified."

Ohio Anecdotes

Indian Village Sacked.

THE ANTECEDENT of the present village of Piqua, Miami county, was an older Indian village called Piqua, on the north side of the Mad river about five miles west of Springfield, which was sacked Aug. 8, 1780.

Gen. George Rogers Clark led his army against a combined tribal defense, part of which, the Mingo tribe, was led by the white renegade, Simon Girty.

Girty in the heat of the action declared it was folly to try to hold the town against men who acted so much like "madmen," and withdrew 300 Mingoes from the fray. The move broke the Indians' morale and a general rout ensued. Clark's men completely obliterated the town.

The town was not rebuilt, and its inhabitants moved to the present site of Piqua on the Great Miami river.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"To Make a Virtue of Necessity."

Long before they uttered the thought, humans, being human, made a virtue of necessity; but who expressed the idea earliest?

The record books indicate that the first was the first century Roman rhetorican Quintilian, who, in his Instruction of Oratory, wrote (in Latin, of course):

"We give to necessity the praise of virtue."

Following him there were, as was to be expected, many others; notably, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Burton, Dryden and Rabelais.

In his Canterbury Tales, Chaucer set the style for choice of phrasing in the form of "to make virtue of necessite."

And everybody else flattered him by adopting his syllables, almost letter by letter.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. Where is the Brenner Pass?
2. What is a monsoon?
3. How many days are there in a lunar month?

Words of Wisdom.

Temperance and labor are the two best physicians: the one sharpens the appetite—the other prevents indulgence to excess.—Rousseau.

Hints on Etiquette.

If you are going to spend a lot of time at a beach this summer, don't do your suntanning on the diving board. Some one might like to use it for diving, you know.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. In the Tyrol, between Bozen and Innsbruck.
2. A periodic wind in certain latitudes in the Indian ocean and southern Asia generally.
3. On an average of 29 days 12 hours, from new moon to new moon.

Pointed Paragraphs

It's always the man who doesn't want credit who can get it for the asking.

There is only one way to acquire wisdom, but when it comes to making a fool of himself a man can have his choice of a thousand different ways.

At Home

Wheat Trouble.

When World war II began last September, the price of wheat soared. Up to this week, many a trader had a neat paper profit. German war successes this week caused speculators to fear a short war and to sell their wheat; prices skidded 30 cents to 86¾ cents a bushel.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace suggested a minimum price be set; American grain markets were quick to make this emergency move. No trading in wheat will be allowed at a price below the closing figures of May 18. On May 20 Secretary Wallace acted again to bolster prices by announcing the government would lend one cent more on a bushel of wheat this year than it did a year ago.

* * *

The Supreme Court upheld the 1937 National Bituminous Coal Act this week, ruled that the federal government has power "to undertake stabilization of an interstate industry through a process of price-fixing."

Aim of the law was to curb the "over-production and savage, competitive warfare," which, Justice Douglas said in the court's majority opinion, had "wasted" the bituminous coal industry.

* * *

Rubber and Oil.

In Atlantic City this week, Dr. Gustave Egloff told the American Institute of Chemists (1) that the U. S. can produce all its own rubber and "any conceivable amount" of explosives from its oil wells; (2) that the entire world production of crude oil since its discovery would not fill a cubic mile hole, which is an insignificant amount compared with the volume nature must hove produced.

Abroad

Scanning the Sky.

The British Isles have not been invaded successfully for nine centuries. Yet, this week, the London Daily Express warned: "Invasion of Britain is perfectly feasible." And Prime Minister Churchill stated that an air attack could now be taken for granted.

Sharpshooters began watching for parachutists as each Briton kept one eye on the sky. The attack would probably start, they heard, with a torrid bombing assault. That was to be followed by German attempts—through the use of thousands of air transports—to land 100,000 troops a day.

* * *

League Packs Its Bag.

Its gleaming white palaces threatened with destruction by the war it proved unable to prevent, the League of Nations prepared, this week, to move to Vichy, France, in case of the invasion of Switzerland. If France too seems threatened, the League will plod on to Lisbon, Portugal. And the non-political sections may even continue on to America.

* * *

Filling the Lebensraum.

An old word—Lebensraum—was given a new twist by Nazis last summer. They said that was what they needed more of. Since then, they have expanded their living room from 260,000 to 435,000 square mile. And this week Interior Minister Frick urged German women to have more babies. New lands being conquered, he said, could be exploited properly "only if we have enough persons capable of doing so."

* * *

Ex-Neighbors.

Only 26 months ago, Germany had 11 neighbors. Then, starting with Austria, Herr Hitler began striking out around his border in counter-clockwise fashion. Czecho-Slovakia, Memel, Poland, Danzig, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France. This week Switzerland, No. 11, noticed large German forces gathering near her border.

Science

FM's Debut.

"Frequency Modulation," a static-less broadcasting system of "bell-like clarity" devised by Major Edwin Armstrong of New York, operates on the ultra short waves below seven meters. This week the Federal Communications Commission set aside 35 wide channels—in wave band from 42 to 50 megacycles—for FM's commercial operation and five for non-commercial.

Describing FM as a "significant contribution to radio" FCC assured the 40,000,000 Americans owning standard receivers that, for at least several years, FM would be only an additional service to regular broadcasting. Standard broadcasting uses what is called "amplitude modulation." Manufacturers say new FM receivers are being designed to function—by the flip of a switch—on both systems.

Worrying Oneself Sick.

Worry—whether it's about debts, the stock market, or Europe's war—is apt to give you stomach ulcers, asthma, skin disorders or possibly even heart trouble. That's the opinion of famed Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston. He told the American Psychopathological Association, in Cincinnati, many psychiatrists are now certain that emotional upsets also upset the production of red blood cells.

MISS FISHER BRIDE OF PETER ZIMMERMAN

Formal Ceremony Performed By Msgr. R. C. Goebel at St. Peter's Catholic Church Early This Morning.

MISS KATHERINE NANCY FISHER became the bride of Peter Adam Zimmerman at 9:30 o'clock this morning before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church. Msgr. R. C. Goebel performed the ceremony, and Raymond Baum presided at the organ.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, 397 Buffalo street, was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of paper white faille taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice and waistline. The bouffant skirt of the dress was attached to a full hipline yoke with ruching, giving the effect of hoops. The full, short sleeves were finished with bows of the same material, and the neckline was sweetheart style Her double, circular fingertip veil was attached to a headpiece of orange blossoms. The former Miss Fisher carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias, lilies-of-the-valley and white roses, and her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Rose Huck was the maid-of-honor, and Miss Ann Zimmerman was the bridesmaid. These attendants wore silk chiffon dresses of like styles made with girdled waistlines and drindl skirts. The square necklines of the gowns were tied with halters of velvet ribbon, which cascaded in streamers over the fitted bodices. Both wore Mary of Scot bonnets of matching illusion with the waistline veils in back. Miss Huck's gown was of a magnetic blue shade with yellow trim, and she carried a colonial bouquet of Talisman roses, sweetpeas and bachelor buttons which were predominantly aqua in tone. Miss Zimmerman wore opaline yellow with blue trim, and her bouquet of the same flowers had a yellow color note.

Joseph Zimmerman was the bridegroom's best man, and the ushers were Mathias Fisher and Fabian Folmer. Mr. Zimmerman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zimmerman, 388 Grace street.

Mrs. Fisher wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and shoulder corsage of red roses for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Zimmerman was attired in a green silk print dress with black and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was also of red roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at noon at the Women's Club, after which the bridal pair left for a short eastern trip. For traveling, Mrs. Zimmerman wore a navy blue and white bolero suit with matching accessories and a picture hat of natural straw trimmed in navy blue ribbon. Pink roses formed her shoulder corsage. The couple will reside at the Buffalo street address upon returning to the city.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman attended Mansfield Senior high school, and they are employed now at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Elect Mrs. Smith New President of Red Cross Group

Mrs. M. L. Smith was elected to the presidency of the Red Cross Production Unit No. 1 yesterday when Mrs. Walter Becker, Andover road, entertained with the assistance of Mrs. Leopold Adams and Mrs. Ray Painter. There were 11 present for the 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. Edwin Eichin was named secretary, and Mrs. Becker will continue to serve as treasurer.

Arrangements were made to fulfill the third quota and it was announced that work rooms have been opened at 14 West Fourth street. These rooms will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week throughout the summer.

Yesterday the unit cut out dresses and made layette patterns. Plans were discussed for a midsummer party at which husbands of members will be guests. Mrs. John Pierce and Mrs. Charles Arbaugh are in charge.

Patricia Lybarger New Head of Little Mozarts

Officers of the Little Mozarts club were elected yesterday when Margery Huber, Carpenter road, entertained 23 members. Patricia Lybarger is the new president. Others named are Jane Mange, vice president; Betty Lou Miller, secretary; Doris Alverson, assistant secretary; Susan Biddle, treasurer; Eleanor Matthes, assistant treasurer.

A program of piano and violin numbers was given by Ruth Copeland, Patricia and Marian Gilbert. Bob Gandart gave a paper on the childhood of George Gershwin. The next meeting will be a picnic June 14 at Walton lake with Phyllis Smith.

MEET AT HALL.

Members of the Past Councilors association of the Daughters of America met in regular session yesterday afternoon with Miss Mary Beilstein in charge. Cards were played, and Mrs. Elizabeth Croskey and her committee were in charge of the dinner which was served at 6 o'clock. The next meeting will be June 21.

Pythian Sisters Entertain With Banquet at Park

There were 44 members and guests of the Pythian Sisters in attendance at a mother and daughter party last evening in the pavilion at North Lake park. A covered-dish dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock. The committee in charge included Mrs. Ethel Metz, Mrs. Alta Ruby, Mrs. Etta Kearns, Mrs. LaDoris Hess, Mrs. Irene Smith and Mrs. Ethel Smith.

Mrs. Matilda Cloud, the oldest mother present, who was 84, was presented with a gift in honor of the occasion. Miss Helen Hess opened the evening's program with a toast to the mothers. Mrs. Louise Koerper responded with a toast to the daughters. A toast to the grandmothers was given then by Miss Ilene Hoffman.

Miss Norma Jean Hess played a violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Miss Wanda Hess. The musical portion of the program was continued with songs by a vocal trio, composed of Miss Gladys Kerr, Miss Ada May Harbaugh and Miss Wanda Hess. Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine played the piano accompaniment. Miss Louise Chevallard closed the program with a reading. Prizes, in the games which followed, were won by Mrs. Noel Smith, Mrs. C. N. Kime and Mrs. Edward Burghard.

The next regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters will be held in the K. of P. hall on June 14.

Pavonia Club Has Literary Program

Mrs. Clinton Burkholder entertained members of the Pavonia Garden club yesterday at her home. During the business meeting the group discussed the project of landscaping and beautifying the Pavonia church and cemetery grounds.

Tentative plans were made for a garden club tour and tea. Last night's program was a paper on "Famous Local People" by Mrs. Howard Hyatt. Contests were conducted with Mrs. Foster Groff and Mrs. Fred Buxton winning.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Groff and Mrs. Robert Eggerton. The hostess gave each member gladioli bulbs as favors. The next meeting, the date of which was not announced, will be with Mrs. Buxton.

Re-Name Officers of Busy Bee Club for Year

Officers of the Busy Bee club were re-elected to serve for another year during a meeting yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. Earl Black on Woodland road. Mrs. Mary Somers was the associate hostess. These officers include: Mrs. May Diesem, president; Mrs. Thomas Long, vice president; Mrs. Lial Ish, secretary; Mrs. Bessie Sheets, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Wingert, floral chairman.

Bunco was the diversion, with prizes going to Mrs. George Bistline, Mrs. Nellie Antes and Mrs. Clara Calver. Dogwood decorated the tables, when a two-course luncheon was served. Mrs. Clyde Charles has invited the group to her home on Park avenue east for the meeting of June 7, when Mrs. Gust Schill will be the associate hostess.

Service League Holds Benefit at Mrs. Imhoff's

Members of the Service League sponsored a benefit bridge party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. E. Imhoff, 248 Park avenue west. There were 21 tables of the diversion in progress, and a prize was awarded for each table. Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh, Mrs. V. E. Vining, Mrs. R. D. Campbell and Mrs. Martin Frank were recipients of other prizes.

Mrs. J. F. Daley was general chairman for the affair, assisted by Mrs. Wayne McFadden, Mrs. G. M. Arbaugh, Mrs. Robert R. Black and Mrs. L. D. Wright. Proceeds will be used in the League's general fund to aid the indigent.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, May 26.

Sunday's horoscope is a forecast of much steadfast and serious progress in the direction of advancement, preferment, esteem and perhaps dignities at the hands of superiors, employers and those in high place of power and prestige. The intellectual and studious faculties are active and aspiring despite much profundity.

Those whose birthday it is may look for recognition and reward from superiors and those in high places, who may proffer promotion, preferment and tokens of esteem and confidence, possibly in connection with literary or professional versatility and adaptability. These should be sought despite certain ideas of modesty, restraint or limitation. Pessimism should be resolutely routed.

For Monday, May 27.

Monday's astrological forecast is for some tenacious obstacles or thwarting situations which it will be difficult to break loose, especially if too much tempest and high pressure of a rash or drastic quality be brought to bear. Since the higher faculties are unusually keyed up and sagacious it would be best to think through rather than hammer through. Let moderation rather than force prevail.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter some turbulent and frustrating circumstances, which it will be difficult to combat. This had best be done by clear and patient thinking rather than impulsive and violent attack.

HAVE LUNCHEON.

There were nine members of the Priscillian club present at the Women's Club yesterday when Mrs. L. H. Beam entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon. Current events were given by the members. The table was decorated with pastel tinted tulips. Mrs. W. P. Close will entertain at the Women's Club June 7.

GARDEN CLUBS PLAN LUNCHEON ON JUNE 6

Mrs. Dorothy Biddle Will Be Guest Speaker; Special Summer Session Will Be Held at Westbrook Country Club.

IT'S A FUTURE EVENT that's the basis for much interest in garden club circles today, as the various groups report plans for the joint meeting which will be held June 6 at the Westbrook Country club. Mrs. Dorothy Biddle, well-known authority on garden problems, decorations and horticulture, will speak following the 1 o'clock luncheon to be served at the club. Members of the Astowela Garden club are hostesses.

Yesterday that group met with Mrs. Neil Remy, West Third street. Mrs. John Finefrock was associate hostess. Slides showing the havoc wrought by soil erosion were shown, and Mrs. L. W. Birch gave the commentary.

Luncheon was served following the business meeting and program with Mrs. C. V. McConnell presiding at the table which was decorated with a centerpiece of lilacs and tulips.

* * *

Mrs. Thornton Lake, Mrs. Thomas Siegenthaler and Mrs. B. B. Drummond volunteered to assist Mrs. A. M. Colby with the judging of school gardens at the meeting of the Buckeye Garden club yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. B. H. Goodenough, 241 Abbyfeale road.

A paper was presented by Mrs. Gene Zediker on "Annuals," and luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. The group planned to join the other clubs in the city for the luncheon at the Country club.

* * *

Mrs. Alan Tappan gave a talk on "What I Saw In Mexico" which she illustrated with movies at the meeting of the Mansfield Garden club with Mrs. Paul Sturges, 560 Overlook road, yesterday. Mrs. Louis Bromfield was associate hostess.

Bermuda and its gardens was the subject about which Mrs. William Bowers spoke. She also showed movies. Luncheon was served and Mrs. George Draffan and Mrs. Carl Routzahn presided at the table.

* * *

There were 17 members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club present at the home of Mrs. J. W. MacLean, Lexington avenue, yesterday to hear Mrs. A. W. Meihack review "Flowering Earth" by Donald Peattie. When luncheon was served Mrs. Henry Sanford and Mrs. Harold Bruce poured.

* * *

Mrs. I. L. Bronson and Mrs. J. B. Conard presided at the luncheon table which was decorated with a lily-of-the-valley centerpiece yesterday when Mrs. Todd J. Patton, Arlington avenue, entertained the Cottage Garden club with Mrs. L. K. Baxter assisting. A routine business meeting was conducted and Hrs. Ernest Ihrig gave the paper "Preparation and Care of Roses."

* * *

A report of the Flower and Garden Appreciation course which was held early this month at the Higbee company in Cleveland was given yesterday by Mrs. George Price at the meeting of the Town and Country Garden club at the home of Mrs. Robert Stevens, Park avenue west road. Mrs. K. L. Woodman reported the flower show which was held at Toledo last week-end.

Mrs. H. W. Gibbs, conservation chairman, announced that there are 125 different varieties of wild flowers on the wildflower trail. "Aviation in My Garden" was the title of the paper given by Mrs. M. J. Cole in which she gave various methods of attracting birds to the garden.

When a buffet luncheon was served at 1 o'clock Mrs. Woodman and Mrs. Ralph Emerson presided at the table. A bouquet of lillies-of-the-valley, narcissi, and nertinsia decorated the table. All of the club will meet again June 6 at the Country club for the joint luncheon.

Club Entertains at Inn; Program Given

There were 21 members and four guests, Msr. Donald Hout, Miss Aleen Hout, Miss Beverly Landis and Miss Jane Brindle, present at the meeting of the Buena Vista club at the Apple Lane Inn. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock at a long table decorated with garden flowers.

Mrs. L. F. Hout was in charge of the business meeting, and later in the afternoon a gift was presented to Mrs. S. E. Harlan who will soon leave the community. A program followed with Mrs. Ray Hout and Mrs. Roy Brindle in charge. They gave a paper on Mother's Day and Decoration Day, and Mrs. George Weimer read a poem. The next meeting will be June 27 with Mrs. Brindle, Crider road.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Robert LeRoy Stockwell, who was five years old yesterday, entertained ten of his friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Stockwell, 24 Beethoven street. The afternoon was spent in games, and pink and blue appointments were used when refreshments were served. Children present were Louellyn Craig, Mary Ann Jones, Janice Kay Stockwell, Ronald Stockwell, Sammy Yarger, Lester Matthes, Bobby McCarrons, Jimmy Yoder, Tommy Alexander and Bobby Burgess.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION ++

CHAPTER XIX

"You said you'd been there," Brooke said.

"Yes. With my mother. I have a grandmother I'd like you to meet, if . . ." his full mouth pulled at one corner and one brow went up, "if she can tear herself away from my father. My stepfather, rather. They've taken a house in Beverly Hills. How long will you be in Los Angeles?"

"Three days exactly."

Tony looked like a little boy asking a forbidden thing. "Long enough to get away for a swim and meet my mother?"

"I can't promise yet."

When their cocktails came, he said, "My going home is a sort of surprise package. They hadn't counted on my intrusion." He raised the glass and smiled at her. "To a lovely girl named Brooke, who is very quiet and polite while I talk about myself. Who are you, ma'am?"

"I'm a girl from New Hampshire with a job . . ."

"That's not a job," Tony said indignantly. "That's a charge . . ."

"On the contrary, it's a good job that takes one to Hawaii."

"How is she?"

"She's old and tired, and I don't think she's ever been happy."

"Oh, surely she has been. She was young once and when you're young, you're happy often with and without reasons. When I'm old I hope I can remember that I was happy."

"Idealist?" Brooke asked.

He laughed. "What are you? No, wait. . . ." He looked straight at her. "I think you're a disappointed idealist. There are times when there's great sadness in your face and not a little bitterness. At other times it's a face that's thoughtful and . . . untouched." Again the look of obvious approbation followed by a chuckle. "And you've got the longest eyelashes I've ever seen."

* * *

Before they went to dinner she knew that he was as interested in sports as in graduate work in history, that he had traveled extensively with his mother, of whom he spoke as if she were a dear companion, and that his early life had been spent in a series of schools and camps. Of his mother he said, "She knows scores of people everywhere and is too restless to stay in one place very long. She can appear as helpless as a baby one minute and the next arise to meet the worst crisis alone. I've seen her do it. She's amazing."

Brooke was sorry when the hour ended and Tony apologized for talking so much about himself. She felt festive and exhilarated walking beside him to the dining-room, pausing to meet an attractive couple to whom Tony introduced her. With Harriet dining with the bearded gentleman, they found Bill alone, leaning back in his chair to explain to a portly dowager the breed of the dog he was taking to California. The dining room was ablaze with light and Brooke thought how thoroughly Jim would approve of the orchestra's selection of a Strauss waltz.

When the dinner was over and she said that she must go to Mrs. Kingsbury, Tony said that he would wait for her despite Bill's admonish that he was monopolizing her and that he strenuously objected.

When Mrs. Kingsbury saw her, she said, "Enjoying yourself, aren't you?"

Brooke smiled. "This one day makes me appreciate your love of travel by sea."

As she gave Brooke a book, the old lady looked sad. Closing her eyes, relaxing her white head on the pillow, she sighed. "Ah, but it can become a disease."

* * *

From the warmth and friendliness of Tony to the evil eyes of a merciless killer Brooke went that hour while she read. Mrs. Kingsbury lay with her eyes closed and did not open them even when Ellen tiptoed in and motioned to Brooke that she need read no longer.

Free again, she went for her velvet wrap and followed the music. Not seeing Tony when she reached the ballroom, she went on deck. The beauty of the night was unbelievable, the stars seemingly close enough to pluck from a clear, cloudless sky, the waves overlapping, playfully. The spray moistened her face and cooled if as she walked, stirred by a sense of the unknown into which the great liner was driving. In this vastness of sea and sky small grievances, prejudices and hurt fell away, she thought. You could think here. You might even plan your life life again so that the unknown would not intimidate you. And most of all you felt alive again, conscious of expectancy, conscious of beauty. The world that had been in mourning had sprung to colorful life again.

Sometime before she reached him, she knew that the lone silhouette was Tony. And he, hearing the rhythm of the silver heels on the deck, turned and spoke before she reached him.

"I promised to wait, didn't I?" was Tony's greeting. "It hasn't been an hour, has it?"

Brooke laughed quietly and pointed to the sea. "That's time—less, Tony. That's why you didn't know."

He chuckled. "That, yes, and the inadvisability of taking a smelly pipe inside. Makes you pensive, doesn't it? Not the pipe—the sea. You can stand for hours, just looking, fascinated. It's a good place to solve important problems. My mother says it makes me melancholy and philosophical and that I have only to look at the sea to preach on injustice, morality and the evils permeating the civilized world." He said thoughtfully, "My mother likes the clash of symbols so loud and constant that she never hears the sad echo. But I've told her often that she wears a false smile."

Brook said, "You're an odd son for a gay mother to have."

"I'm like my father, they tell me. He died for a principle—in vain, I'm afraid. The first idealist. . . ."

He was silent for a moment.

"If you could only live your life as you play a game, hard and clean and with good teamwork." He looked down at Brooke and in the faint light she saw his smile. "Shall we dance? Bill says I'm unfair when there are a hundred conquests ready to be conquered."

He danced, as Rod danced, with casual grace. Bill motioned for them to join him and the heavy-lidded blonde in white who in bored tones revealed that she was the wife of a motion picture producer and the mother of twins. Across the room Harriet wiggled her fingers for recognition and beamed upon the bearded chap. Tony said he had a sinister squint. Brooke danced with the amiable Bill, promised to see his blue-ribbon winner dog the next day, reminisced with him on summer in Maine, and promised not to give all her evenings to Tony.

* * *

She could say to herself now in all honesty that she was happy again and even if this happiness were only the fleeting sort, she would sustain it until the journey's end. Responsive to color and music, her face was radiant and she felt light as down when Bill reluctantly released her to Tony again. It was good—good! She wanted to say to the handsome sensitive face close to hers, "Do you know how long it's been since I felt like this? Idon't feel beaten down and defeated tonight! And I'm not afraid of what's coming next. Tony, your touch isn't like your dancing—casual."

She looked up and smiled at him.

Tony said, 'Nice perfume, m'm."

'A seafaring cousin brought it to me a year ago."

"So you had salty forbears, too? That accounts for the faraway look in your eyes—as if you've seen the sun rise on many horizons."

After midnight they walked around the deck once more before he said a lingering good night outside her cabin. Gently he put in place a strand of her hair that had been blown askew and smiled so tenderly that her heart stirred.

"Good night, Brooke." His eyes took in al of her as he said happily, "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow . . ."

"I like to think about it, too . . ."

She went in, smiling, wondering if as yet she would admit to herself that Tony was falling in love with her, wondering if she wanted him to be in love with her, knowing that though she liked to be with, she was not in love with him.

She saw him in the morning and nearly every moment after that when she was free. She swam with him every afternoon after Mrs. Kingsbury had had sufficient air and returned to her cabin, danced with him each night, and walked countless miles around the deck with him. She spent a delightful day with him in Havana. She told him much of her New England life and her family, but she told him nothing about Rod. She came to know Tony better, too; to know that he could be as melancholy as he could be gay.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

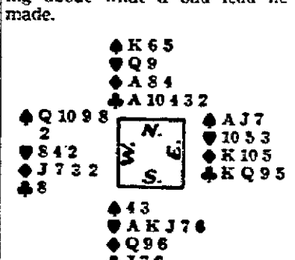
TRUST YOUR PARTNER

Treating your partner as if he doesn't know his business is just as witless in bridge as in the workaday world. When he leads the suit which had been bid by the declarer's partner, you ought to know he is not making the seemingly worst lead in the entire hand unless he had a good reason for it. Isn't it much more likely that he has a singleton, and wants to ruff the suit, than that he has a doubleton? If you figure it that way, you will return the suit to him instead of upsetting yourself thinking about what a bad lead he made.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Pass	Pass	1♣	1 NT

"Why in blazes did he do that?" thought East after West led the club 8. "He knows from my No Trump bid that I have the clubs stopped. But my tricks could come later. Why does he knock out my stoppers as soon as he can and set up the dummy's suit for discards?"

Then, after North played low, he took the trick with his Q. South playing the 7, East noted that the 6 had not appeared, so reckoned West had held a doubleton. He therefore returned a heart and the contract was made. The defenders took only two tricks in each black suit, plus the diamond K.

East should have figured thus: "West certainly would not have made such a bad lead as a doubleton of the dummy's suit. He must have had a singleton." Had he done this and led his club 5 to the second trick, then another club when he got in with a spade, his side would have scored one more trick and would have beaten the contract.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"No, we cannot wait any longer for anything," he said, consulting his watch. "But I do hope he can be found soon. Have you told Jim to have my son come directly to this room as soon as he is found?"

"I impressed that upon both Jim and Katie," Lillian said with the evident determination to "tell a good one" while she had the opportunity. "They will send him here the instant they catch a glimpse of him."

He ran an experienced eye over the players and consulted the first pages of his copy of the play.

"You are all in your proper stations, I see," he began. "Mrs. Graham, will you bring your script and sit here, please?"

He indicated a chair for me, near the one beside which he was standing, and in which, as most of us knew from experience of him, he would sit only at brief intervals during the rehearsal. When he had put me into the chair with meticulous courtesy, he spoke again to me, but in tones which all the others could hear.

"You will be in the best position here," he said, "not only to observe the players but to prompt any one of them who may need such assistance, but I doubt that you will have any prompting to do."

He turned to the players, who were all watching him closely.

"You are all familiar with your roles, I take it," he said, and added, "You would better be, if you know what's good for you."

There was a chorus of acquiescence, which I knew spelled accuracy, for everyone who knows Philip Veritzen also knows that he will not forgive an actor who is unfamiliar with his lines.

"In this first rehearsal, I shall make no suggestions," he went on. "You will go through with your lines from the start to finish without interruption. Mrs. Graham and I will make mental notes, if necessary, but we shall do no actual writing which will district you. Mrs. Graham's memory is phenomenal, and my experience will serve me I hope."

I knew that Lillian and Nancy Carew, who had known the great producer longer than any of the rest of us, must be suppressing smiles at this understatement, for it is a rare moment indeed when Philip Veritzen makes a written note at a rehearsal of one of his plays.

"Miss Aldrich and Miss Howard"—he addressed the two women whose jealousy of Mary I had noted—"you are on the stage when the curtain goes up. Will you consider the curtain has just gone up now, and will the rest of you take your cues and make your various entrances promptly?"

Miss Aldrich spoke her first lines, Miss Howard hers, and the rehearsal was in full swing. Everything was to lead up to Mary's entrance, and I kept my eyes upon her anxiously as she stood erect against the farther door. The lines which were the cue for her entrance were delivered by Mr. Redfield, but before Mary could speak her first word, Mr. Veritzen spoke her name.

"Mrs. Veritzen," he said, and paused, while Mary's hands clenched at her sides. "I must contradict a former direction of mine. Will you be so good as to discard the rendition upon which you and I had agreed? I find that I prefer the one in which Mrs. Graham has so capably drilled you."

Student Indicted For Attack Upon Columbus Woman

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Herbert J. Fleischman, 29, former student at the University of Berlin and the University of Cincinnati, was under indictment today charged with assault to kill.

The Franklin county grand jury returned the indictment after listening to the story of Mona Ward, stenographer, who said she was drugged, stripped and beaten with a whip in Fleischman's room.

Dr. Lionel Fleischman, Cincinnati physician and father of Herbert, asked that his son be examined by a psychiatrist but police refused. Dr. Fleischman believed his son was a maniac-depressive but police said he was sane.

Fleischman has resided near the Ohio State university campus to prepare a thesis for a degree from Cincinnati. He lived on a $25 weekly allowance from his father.

FURNITURE LOST

WILLARD — The household furnishings belonging to Mrs. Pearl Willoughby were destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon as they were being taken by truck to Bradnor, Ohio, where she expects to make her home.

Mrs. Willoughby, a resident here for more than 30 years, is the widow of W. D. Willoughby a stock and wool buyer in this vicinity.

BUSINESS GROWS

GALION—Annual reports showed an increase in business when the North Electric Manufacturing company held its annual meeting this week. The company at the present time is the largest employer of labor in Galion.

Directors re-elected are F. R. McBerty of Galion; A. B. Baldwin; H. M. Engh, Erie, Pa.; James R. Garfield of Cleveland; C. W. Hitchcock, of Cleveland; F. H. McCullough of Chicago, and John Winn of New York City.

YOUTH COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY

SHELBY—United Youth council will meet at 7:30 p. m. Monday night to arrange for another in the series of the parties for the young people of the Shelby churches.

Dawson Swisher, president, will conduct the business session. The council will discuss the by-laws for its organization drawn up by Rev. Carl A. Grimm, counselor of the group, which will be presented for approval at the next general meeting of the young people early next month.

Only Baruch, who also headed the war industries broad, and Willard are still alive.

There was some speculation that Mr. Roosevelt might indicate his defense council decision in the course of his "fireside chat" broadcast tomorrow night, when the White House has promised the nation a "straightforward and factual report . . . of the defense situation and defense needs."

The question of the effectiveness of the 1916 law in covering a new defense council has been raised by some legal historians, but the president was said to believe that a few changes could make it useful.

Taft Again Hits Third Term Secret.

NEW YORK —(INS)— President Roosevelt could achieve the national unity he seeks to meet the critical war situation abroad by disclaiming any third term intentions, in the belief today of Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican presidential candidate.

Neither domestic affairs nor the foreign crisis should be used as arguments for a third term, Taft told the Brooklyn Women's Republican club.

Sunday to Bring First Articles In Two New Features

the News-Journal gives you the first in a series of seven articles telling that story.

You will start out with the reporters on their beats, watch the news come in over the teletypes, and see how news pictures are taken in this first article. In succeeding stories you'll watch the news edited and the advertising solicited. You'll see the copy going through the composing room. You'll learn how pages are made up and you'll "go to press." In conclusion, you'll go out on the routes and see the papers distributed.

You'll do all this from your favorite armchair because the cameraman presents a series of pictures to highlight the story.

Back To Earth

When Louis Bromfield said "The land shall make you free" he gave us an excellent quotation to use in the series of feature stories on Mansfield's gentlemen farmers which begins in tomorrow's edition.

With the trend of migrations turning from city to farm for the first time in American history and with many prominent businessmen seeking a sound investment in the land, particular interest attaches to this series which incidentally introduces you to a number of local men and farms worth knowing about.

E. S. Nail and his 500-acre farm on North Main street road are the subject of the first article in the series.

Inklings

In this Sunday's edition for the first time we bring you a review of the week's news in cartoon form. The layout of amusing highlights of the week was drawn by the News-Journal staff artist Claude Stricker.

In addition you'll find picture features on an outstanding Mansfield flower garden, on the Dionne Quins, and on three local national guard officers who recently completed three months special training at Fort Sill.

There are all the regular features too, including sports, society, comics, women's page, and columns by nationally known writers, AND NEWS!

PARENT-TEACHER COUNCIL AT GALION PICKS NEW OFFICERS

GALION—At the dinner-meeting of the Galion City Council of Parent-Teachers associations held at the East school building, Thursday night, for members, their wives and husbands, officers were chosen for next year during the business session.

E. R. Pickering was elected president; Mrs. Russell Smith was chosen vice president; and C. M. Stover, secretary-treasurer.

There were some 50 members and guests present. Arrangements for the dinner were in charge of Mrs. William Diesem, and it was served by several of the sixth grade girls of the building. Favors had been made by the art department pupils of the school, and tables were decorated with cut flowers. The dinner meeting was held in the auditorium of the building.

Program features included numbers by a male quartet composed of R. W. Patterson, Rev. Sterling Wees, Fred Wilson and George Ruhl. A panel discussion led by Mrs W. R. Eckstein, was presented by O. E. Hill, superintendent of schools; Lucy Ailer, school health and attendance teacher; and Mrs. Sarah Beegle, nursery school supervisor. Group singing was led by Rev. Wees with Virginia Craner at the piano. Remarks were made by Louise John, vice president of the Galion board of education who was a guest present.

R. W. Patterson, president of the council, pointed out three outstanding accomplishments of the council this year: the formation of a P. T. A. unit at the Senior high school; the Youth Conference held during the winter; and the gain of more than 100 per cent membership in the units this year.

URGES YOUTH TO BE SELF-RELIANT

Baldwin - Wallace Dean Gives Commencement Talk at Springfield School.

"Youth of today must become self directing," Dean Frederick Roehm of Baldwin-Wallace college, Berea, told an audience of about 500 persons during commencement exercises for 27 seniors at Springfield Township high school, Ontario, last night.

Speaking on the subject, "Education For Character," Dean Roehm said, "Character training formerly was a series of don'ts, but today the emphasis is on doing —on expression." He urged members of the class to become self-directing and put their creative power to work.

During the exercises scholastic awards were presented seven seniors by L. C. Stingel, superintendent. Awards for high scholastic standing went to Georgann Charles and Frances Stingel. Others presented were Aileen Turner, music, Dorothy Milliron, art, Gerald Downs, science, Mildred Rosen, commercial, and Mary Hyman, art.

Presentation of diplomas was made by Harlan Taylor, president of the board of education. Georgann Charles gave the salutatory address and Frances Stingel was the valedictorian. Musical numbers included a violin solo by Charles Krauss and selections by the school orchestra. Rev. E. H. Thompson, pastor of the Ontario Community church, gave the invocation.

Members of the class are Jeannette Baker, Georgann Charles, Russell Devore, Gerald Downs, Maxine Duvall, Lucille Fox, Virginia Gatton, Henry Hager, Jay Harriman, Helen Hoover, T. D. Hudson, Dorothy Hunter, Mary Hyman, James Lambright, Nola Lenhart, Benjamin Miller, Dorothey Milliron, Lucille Noblet, Donald Pierce, Mildred Rosen, Albert Sauer, Clarence Smith, Eugene Sowers, Richard Sowers, Frances Stingel, Aileen Turner and Robert Wagenhals.

Dorothy Discards Sarong.

TWO tuneful new song hits were written for Dorothy Lamour to sing in her role of night club entertainer in "Johnny Apollo" the drama which co-stars her with Tyrone Power at the Madison theater. One of these, "Dancing for Nickels and Dimes," Dorothy sings in a colorful night club revue number, in which she wears a tattered street gamin's costume. The second number is "This is the Beginning of the End." She plays the role of the gunman's sweetheart.

Authentic Reproductions.

Headed by an all star cast "My Son, My Son!" appears at the Ohio theater. Brian Aherne, Medeleine Carroll, Louis Hayward, Henry Hull, Josephine Hutchinson and Sophie Stewart are the leading characters in this adaptation from the Howard Spring novel by that name. Due to the fact that the story travels through several cities and country sections of England and covers a period of more than 25 years John Ducasse Schultze was detailed to preserve the accuracy of every detail of setting, and all are patterned after actual places in England.

* * *

Martin Spellman, Newcomer.

Beginning Sunday at the Park theater will be "Sons of the Navy", starring Jean Parker and James Dunn, with Martin Spellman, 12-year-old child star in the leading role. This is a comedy drama about an orphan who runs away to adopt a mother and father. Jean plays the part of a young woman who hates sailors but ends up by marrying one, Jimmy Dunn. The co-feature is "$1,000 a Touchdown," with Joe E. Brown and Martha Raye in the leads.

Family Appeal Program.

Two pictures with "family appeal" are on the Majestic program for tomorrow and Monday. One is "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on The President" and the other is "Blondie Brings Up Baby." The first feature is a picturization of the Damon Runyon characters in which Ann Sothern and William Gargan portray Ethel and Joe. In the Blondie picture, this popular cartoon heroine brings up her baby by book—but not for long.

Bob Feller Hits First Home Run In Cleveland Triumph

Braves Secure Miazga to Play In Left Field

Former Tiffin First Baseman to Take Over Berth Vacated By Connie Zerman.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THEY are resting in the lowlands of the Ohio State league standings today but Chief Dewey Stover and his Braves are revamping their lineup as they endeavor to cut the distance to the top hill of the title race.

Mansfield club officials announced today that Matt Miazga, who played first base for Tiffin until he was released this week, has been signed to take over the left field berth.

Since Connie Zerman left the team without notifying officials, Manager Stover has been trying to plug up the hole. He tried Lloyd Graham, Bob Finney and Tim Mangan but wasn't satisfied with their work.

Miazga, a classy fielding first baseman, is hitting around the .265 per cent mark and Stover believes the tall, lanky youngster may be the answer. Should Stover get a better outfielder from the reinforcements coming in next week Miazga will still have a chance of winning Harry Seigbert's first base job.

* * *

Seigbert has been weak at the plate and the batting power he showed last year is needed. If Harry fails to hit his stride Stover may bench him for several games.

* * *

Finney, 18-year-old Galion youth, was released outright by the Braves today. He joined the club early this week. Inexperience cost him a chance of remaining in the wigwam.

Idle last night after an all-night rain made a lake out of the field at the fairground, the Braves meet the Fremont Green Sox at Fremont at 3 p. m today Bob Arnold is to toss 'em for the Mansfield club

The Braves entertain Findlay at the fairground at 3 p. m. Sunday. Stover was undecided today who would be on the hill Friday night's defeat left the Braves sharing fifth place with Tiffin. Mansfield is five games behind Lima and Findlay, the co-leaders.

Club officials said today that several new faces may appear in the lineup next week.

Altas Scheduled For Doubleheader Sunday.

With the weatherman's permission, the Alta Lumber softball team will play a doubleheader on the North Lake park diamond Sunday. At 2 p. m. the Altas will tangle with the Tinkey Lumbers and at 3:30 p. m. they will take on Nick's Place softball club. McKinley is scheduled to toe the rubber in the first game and Joe Wentz in the second for the Alta team.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY M'LEMORE

NEW YORK—(UP)—With some 22,260 other baseball moths I was drawn to the flame at the Polo grounds last night when the Giants and the Bees played the first night game in the history of the Island of Manhattan.

* * *

The place was so bright the ushers were selling freckle cream by the sixth inning, and one man who fainted in the bleachers was treated for sunstroke. The concessionaires, if they're smart, will add pith helmets, sun tan oil and dark glasses to their wares to help the customers protect themselves from the 200,000,000 candle-power lights.

* * *

When the game was over, and the fans staggered out into the darkness of the well-lit New York streets, many of them wandered off in all directions with that halting, unsure step which people use in entering dark movie theaters.

The game drew a crowd unlike any other in baseball history. I can swear to that because I sat beside a woman in evening clothes and a mink cape, who was escorted by a man in top hat and tails. In front of us were some boys in leather jackets, and scattered about us were commuters in business suits and derbies.

But at heart it was the same baseball crowd you see in the afternoon under the sun. The lady in mink ate peanuts and drank pop like a veteran bleacherite, and the gentleman treated his tophat as carelessly as if it were a cap when the Giants got their home runs.

The Giants played under the lights as if they had done their spring training in the Edison Mazda factory. The Bees played—well, they played like the Bees, which is to say they performed after the manner of foreigners just being introduced to the game of baseball. They have a vague idea what fielding is all about but the relation between bat and ball is something they're still trying to figure out.

* * *

Bill Terry, who has gone on record more than once in regard to his dislike for night baseball, probably doesn't feel so bitter today, now that he has seen his athletes perform so well under the home ground bulbs.

* * *

The attendance probably didn't make Colonel Terry feel too badly either. He is a house-counter of the very highest order and does not consider that game lost which draws a rousing crowd.

MID-ATLANTIC, STATE LEAGUES RAINED OUT

COLUUMBUS —(AP)— The entire slate of both the Ohio State and Mid-Atlantic leagues were rained out yesterday.

Today's schedule: Ohio State league—Lima at Findlay, Tiffin at Fostoria, Mansfield at Fremont. Mid-Atlantic league—Akron at Portsmouth, Charleston at Canton, Dayton at Youngstown.

3 Teams Have Title Chance

Northwestern, Minnesota Still in Big Ten Running.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Three teams still have a chance to get a slice of the Big Ten baseball title, but Illinois is the only one which can't miss a share of the championship.

* * *

Northwestern lost its chance to win undisputed possession of the title yesterday by bowing to Ohio State, 3 to 2. Now they have to defeat State today in their season finale to share the top spot with Illinois.

* * *

Illinois completed its schedule a week ago with nine victories in 12 games. Minnesota stayed in the running with a 2 to 1 victory over Michigan yesterday. The Gophers have three games to play, one today with Michigan and two next week with Iowa. Should they win all of them, their percentage would be the best but their record no better than the Illini's in the won-lost column.

Youngstown to Play Game With Browns

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — The Youngstown Browns will forget the Mid-Atlantic league pennant chase for a day, May 31, to play an exhibition game with their parent club, the St. Louis Browns of the American league.

* * *

Business Manager William Osley, who announced the exhibition contest, disclosed also the release of Pitcher Ed Yelkin to bring the Youngstown roster within the 15 player limit. Yelkin was released to the Mayfield, Ky., team of the Kitty league. He is now on option to the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association.

As Overlin Won Championship

This action shot from the Ken Overlin-Ceferino Garcia middleweight championship bout in New York shows Garcia slipping to the floor in the first round. Overlin, southern champion, won the bout and Garcia's title in 15 rounds.

Ken Overlin, Garcia To Meet In Re-Match

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— Announcement that globe-trotting Ken Overlin and Ceferino Garcia, the futile Filipino, will meet in a 15-round rematch for the New York commission world middleweight title on Sept. 12, today left nobody in a great dither, but caused some wonderment as to how long it will be before promoters and boxing boards get together to un-muddle pugilistic situation.

* * *

According to the understanding, the winner of Thursday night's bout between the aforementioned gentlemen was to take on Al Hostak, of Seattle, who is recognized as the 160-pound champion of the National Boxing association.

* * *

But all that was thrown out the window when Nate Druxman, Seattle promoter, and impressario Mike Jacobs failed to get together, with the result that Garcia will be given a chance to regain the so-called crown he lost to Overlin on a 15-round decision.

Hence, for an indefinite time there will be two middleweight champions at large, leaving a status quo of disputed title-holders in five of the eight boxing divisions. The New York commission, whose rulings sometimes surpass understanding, and the National Boxing association, which by this time is being laughed at or ignored in most places, can't get together and, under the circumstances, the promoters won't.

The only undisputed champions of the moment are heavyweight Joe Louis, light heavyweight Billy Conn and welterweight Henry Armstrong. Everybody recognizes them, but take a look at the other divisions.

Starting at the bottom and working up, nobody ever pays any attention to the flyweights (112 pounds) any more, but if anybody should seek out the champion in this group he would wind up with little Dado of the Philippines, and a dispute from several quarters.

The bantams (118 pounds) have as bellwethers Georgie Pace, of Cleveland; Lou Salica, of New York, and Tony Olivera, of California.

Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, Pete Scalza, of New York, and Jimmy Perrin, of New Orleans, claim the featherweight (126 pound) title.

* * *

Lew Jenkins, who knocked out Lou Ambers, and Sammy Angott, who outpointed Davey Day, share lightweight (135 pound) recognition.

* * *

Then comes Armstrong heading the welters, or 147-pounders; Overlin and Hostak disputing the middleweight or 160-pound title; Conn topping all light heavies, or 175-pounders, and Joe Louis at the top of the heavyweight ranks.

Scouts Haunt Mike Kelley

Millers' Boss Comes Up With Fine-Looking Rookie.

(By Associated Press)

American Association baseball followers probably will hear any time now that the big league scouts are haunting Mike Kelley, baseball-wise boss of the Minneapolis Millers.

* * *

Kelley, a great judge of talent, has come up with another fine-looking rookie shortstop only a year after he sold Jimmy Pofahl to Washington for an fancy figure. The new lad's name is Eugene (Huck) Geary, 23-year-old star who played with Deland, Fla., last season.

* * *

Huck is batting better than .350, covers lots of ground, and has a consecutive hitting string now of 19 games. One of his three hits last night drove in the winning runs as Minneapolis defeated Milwaukee, 6 to 2.

* * *

But the Millers made no dent in Kansas City's four-game lead. The Blue got only five hits off young Tom Earley but won the game in the eighth when St. Paul's defense sagged, 3 to 2.

* * *

Yank Terry's wildness got Indianapolis off to a winning start and they went on to defeat Louisville, 5 to 4. Terry gave up five walks and seven hits in six innings. The Toledo-Columbus game was rained out.

2 Teams Hold Edge In Meet

Toledo, Baldwin-Wallace on Top In Conference.

BOWLING GREEN—(AP)— Toledo and Baldwin-Wallace enjoyed an edge today as 14 teams battled in the finals of the 38th annual Ohio conference track meet.

* * *

The Rockets and Yellow Jackets qualified 13 men in yesterday's perliminaries, staged on a soggy track.

* * *

Oberlin qualified 8, Kent State 6, Bowling Green, Case, Wooster and Denison, 5 each, Capital 4, Muskingum 3, Kenyon and Otterbein, 2 each, and Mt. Union and Wittenberg, 1 each.

* * *

Baldwin-Wallace placed second in last week's Big Four invitational meet, which was won by the Rockets.

* * *

One of the features of the finals was the two-mile, pitting Gilbert Dodds of Ashland against Ron Force of Heidelberg. Each has bettered ths present conference mark in other meets this season.

Mansfield Hi Golfers In Seventh Place.

Mansfield high school's golf team, playing in a steady downpour yesterday, rested in seventh place as the Ohio Scholastic golf tournament reached the final stage today. Al Hager was low for the Mansfielders with an 87. The high school meet is staged on the Ohio State university course at Columbus.

MARINELLI COPS DECISION

DAYTON — (AP)—Joe Marinelli, Dayton featherweight, won a 10-round decision over Jackie Taylor, Columbus, O., Negro, last night. Marinelli weighed 131 and Taylor 129.

PHILLIES SIGN DARRELL

PHILADELPHIA — (UP) — The Philadelphia Phillies today announced the signing of Darrell (Cy) Blanton, curve ball pitcher recently set free from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

ARMSTRONG WINS

BOSTON—Henry Armstrong, 140¼, welterweight champion, Los Angeles, stopped Ralph Zannelli, 145¼, Providence, R. I. (3).

Carbetta, Smallwood To Clash In Fight Show.

Paul Carbetta, top-ranking Mansfield bantamweight, signed today to meet Buddy Smallwood, of Akron, 1940 Cleveland Golden Gloves open champion, in a feature five-round bout on the Friendly House outdoor card to be presented early in July. Jake Zacharias, leading Friendly House middleweight, will also tackle an Akron foe, Russ Gimbel, settlement director, announced today.

Bucky Out for 7th Straight Victory Today

Thompson Slated to Hurl 2nd Game in Doubleheader.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Bucky Walters, out for his seventh straight victory, and Junior Thompson faced the task of recapturing for the Reds undisputed lead in the National league today through a double encounter with the Cardinals.

* * *

Thompson has a record of five triumphs against two losses.

* * *

In addition to ordering his two best hurlers into the conflict Manager Bill McKechnie announced that Harry Craft would be back in centerfield and that Johnny Rizzo would take over leftfield.

Craft had been confined to the bench by an injured leg. Rizzo was recently acquired from Pittsburgh.

A double victory for the Reds, now tied with Brooklyn for first place, and a Dodger success would pit the Rhinelanders a half game ahead. One win for Manager Ray Blades' boys might give Brooklyn a half game lead;—double setback of the Reds and a Flatbush triumph would hand the Dodgers a game and a half reach on Cincinnati.

* * *

The Cards, who went 14-inning to an 8 to 8 tie but have not defeated the Reds this season, called on Lon Warneke and Bill McGee for mound duty.

* * *

The Reds were idle yesterday after a somewhat disappointing eastern invasion in which they won three, lost four games and were forced to postpone three bookings.

Toledo Leads By 9 Strokes

Ohio Conference Golf Tourney Goes Into Final 18.

TOLEDO—(AP)—The University of Toledo, defending champions, went into the final 18 holes of the Ohio conference golf tournament today with a nine-stroke lead.

* * *

The Rocket swingers shot the first 18 in 312 to top a five team field. Kenyon had 321, Wooster 324, Oberlin 336 and Denison 338.

* * *

Rain and a high wind swept the Heatherdowns course, sending most of the scores into the 80's.

* * *

Marshall Carlson, Toledo captain and Ohio intercollegiate champion, paced the field for the first round with an even par 71.

* * *

Other low scorers included Dick Gernert, Wooster, 74; John Carlisle, Oberlin, 75; Bill Stokes, Toledo, 77, and Earl Kate, Wooster, 77.

Wolves On Way to 4th Outdoor Title

EVANSTON, Ill. — (AP) — Michigan, bulwarked by 19 qualifiers in yesterday's preliminaries, apparently was well on its way today to a fourth consecutive Big Ten outdoor track title.

* * *

Indiana, rated Michigan's most dangerous rival for the top spot, sent 13 men into today's finals. Ohio State had seven.

* * *

Ohio State qualifiers included Ralph Hammond, 100 and 220; Jack Sulzman, quarter; Ken Hudson and Lester Eisenhart, half-mile; James Strausbaugh, broad jump; Howard Ell, javelin, and Albert Zack, discus.

Indians Tally 3-2 Win Over St. Louis Team

Youthful Hurler Cracks Out 360-Foot Drive In Third Inning; Indians Gain on Boston.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Southpaw Al Milnar was called to the hill to seek his fifth victory of the season today as the Cleveland Indians continued their determined drive toward first place in the American league.

Emil Bildilli was due to pitch for the Browns.

The Indians forged within a game of the leading Boston Red Sox last night with a 3 to 2 victory over St. Louis in the opener of a four-game series.

It was the first night game in history here and 25,562 fans learned first hand why Bob Feller is rated one of baseball's greatest pitchers.

The 21-year-old hurler's report card showed these merit marks for the triumph, his sixth of the season against two defeats.

* * *

Pitching: Held Browns to seven scattered hits, fanned nine and walked only two. He now has 60 strikeouts for the year.

* * *

Hitting: Blasted 360-foot home run in the third inning, the first circuit smash of his professional career

Fielding: With Rip Radcliff on second base in the eighth inning, Chet Laabs laid down a good bunt. Feller pounced on the ball and shot a fast throw to Ken Keltner at third to nip the speedy Radcliff and snuff out the Browns' last scoring chance.

The victory raised Feller into possession, possibly permanent, of the junior circuit's pitching lead. Besides his no-hitter, Feller has pitched one three-hit game (no hits until the seventh inning) and one four-hit contest.

* * *

In another night game, the major leagues' third in two nights, the New York Giants defeated the Boston Bees 8-1. The affair not only introduced nocturnal baseball to Manhattan, but to most of the Giant players because the club had refused previously even to play night games on the road.

* * *

A pitching performance that rivalled Feller's and one of the best mound duels of the spring was provided in the Chicago White Sox' 2-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers. John Rigney permitted just three hits and fanned six. In seven of the nine frames he retired the Tigers in order. One of the two innings he didn't was the fourth, when Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg doubled in succession for a run.

These were the day's only major league games.

In just a year or so, one of the most beautiful roadways in all Ohio, will be the 4½ mile stretch between Loudonville and the C.C.C. camp at Mohican State Park. About 5,000 dogwood trees, planted 10 feet apart, will each spring be a mass of pure white or pink blooms, lending enchantment to the route. In fall the plum colored berries will give a touch of rich color, and be the mecca for birds and squirrels, providing a favorite food for wildlife.

The fisherman who wears Goodrich "litentuf" fishing boots (sold at Yuncker's) can cast, reel in, wade and tramp tireiessly, all day. It's because these boots are so light in weight and because of their extra stretch and snug fit, and the sponge rubber insole, all adding up to REAL comfort.

No species of fish is more cannibalistic than the walleye, in spawning season. When the fry emerge from the eggs they live by means of the yolk sac attached under the head. When this is consumed they immediately begin to attack each other. Sometimes this is done with such "blitzkrieg" rapidity, that chains of the tiny fish are formed, each having hold of the tail of the one in front, in attempting to swallow it. It is not uncommon to see such chains with 25 fish in line.

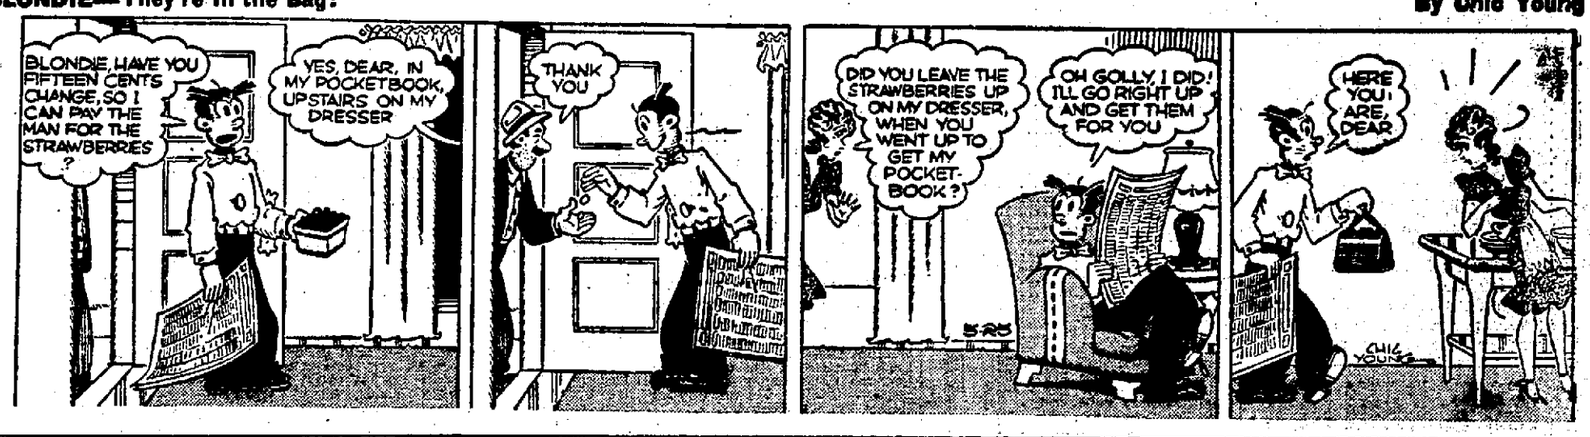
What puzzles most movie goers is that apparently many great men, when they were youths, looked just like Mickey Rooney.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Deferred Payment By Harold Gray

WELL, OUR LITTLE FARMERETTE-HOW'S EVERYTHING GOING UP HERE IN THE COUNTRY?
SWELL, NICK-BUT I'D SURE LIKE TO GO TO THE TROUPE AS SOON AS I CAN—AND I'D LIKE TO SEE SANDY-
5-25-40
YOU GET-COUPLE WEEKS MORE, ANNIE, AND IT'LL BE SAFE FOR YOU TO GO ANYWHERE-
SAY, BOSS-I'D LIKE TO TALK TO YOU-THAT GUY, BOLO, HAS BEEN TRYIN' TO QUEER OUR BUSINESS—COLLECTIONS ARE STARTIN' TO FALL OFF-
TH' BUSINESS MEN ARE ACTIN' FUNNY-THERE'S SOMETHIN' GOIN' ON, AND BOLO IS BACK OF IT-
YOU WANT WE SHOULD LOOK UP THIS SMART FELLA, BOLO, AND GIVE HIM A TREATMENT?
HAROLD GRAY
NO-NO, BOYS! NO ROUGH STUFF-NOT NOW-WE'VE GOT THIS BIG JOB WITH AXEL TO CLEAN UP FIRST-AFTER THAT, I'LL SEE ABOUT BOLO—BUT NOT NOW-

BLONDIE—They're In the Bag! By Chic Young



BLONDIE, HAVE YOU FIFTEEN CENTS CHANGE, SO I CAN PAY THE MAN FOR THE STRAWBERRIES?
YES, DEAR, IN MY POCKETBOOK, UPSTAIRS ON MY DRESSER
THANK YOU
DID YOU LEAVE THE STRAWBERRIES UP ON MY DRESSER, WHEN YOU WENT UP TO GET MY POCKET-BOOK?
OH GOLLY, I DID! I'LL GO RIGHT UP AND GET THEM FOR YOU
HERE YOU ARE, DEAR
CHIC YOUNG

THE NEBBS—Anything Can Happen. By Sol Hess

THIS GUY EMBERT CAN MARRY MY WAITRESS SOPHIE, BUT HE CAN'T BRING HER BACK HERE TO RUN OUR BUSINESS
YOU CAN'T EXPECT SOPHIE TO BE RIGHT AFTER SHE GETS USED TO BEING SOMEBODY... A JUMP FROM WAITRESS TO A GREAT CHEMIST'S WIFE IS NO SMALL HOP
5-25
I CAN'T GET OVER THAT OLD WEATHER-BEATEN MUMMY FALLING FOR SOPHIE...HOW DID SHE EVER WARM UP THAT HUNK OF DRY ICE?
IT WAS A GREAT ROMANCE...HE SAID IT STARTED WHEN SHE HANDED HIM A NAPKIN... HE'D GIVE HER HAND A SLY SQUEEZE
AND SOPHIE! YOU'D NEVER THINK SHE'D FALL FOR SWEET, KIND WORDS... THE ONLY CHANGE I EVER SAW ON HER FACE WAS BROUGHT ABOUT BY THE ABSENCE OF OR SIZE OF TIPS
I GAVE HER A BUCK LAST CHRISTMAS AND SHE TOOK IT LIKE IT WAS SOMETHING ON ACCOUNT
NO RAGE A JIG-IN EVERY SHOW

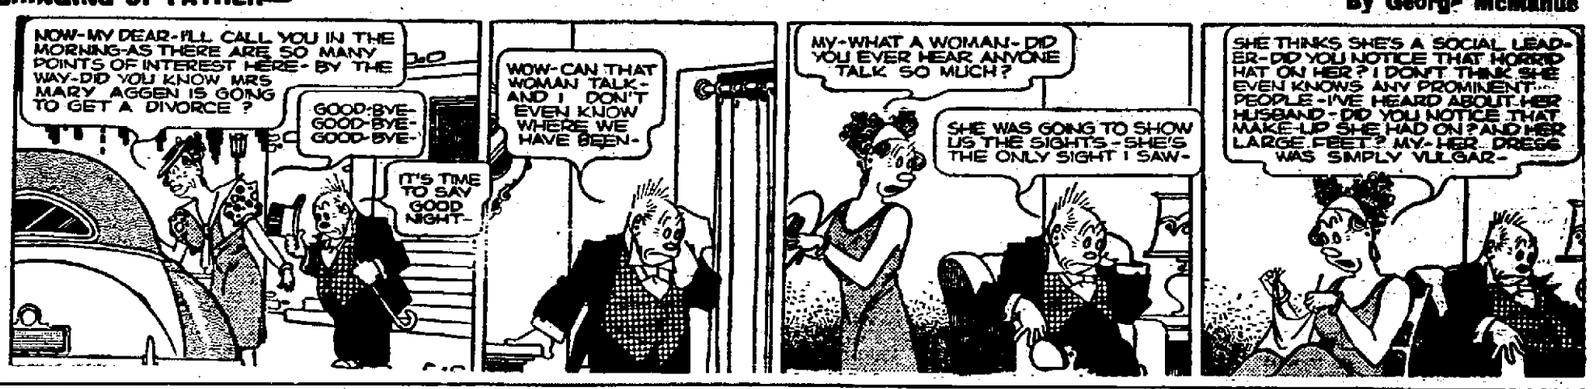
BRINGING UP FATHER— By George McManus



NOW-MY DEAR-I'LL CALL YOU IN THE MORNING-AS THERE ARE SO MANY POINTS OF INTEREST HERE- BY THE WAY-DID YOU KNOW MRS MARY AGGEN IS GOING TO GET A DIVORCE?
GOOD-BYE- GOOD-BYE- GOOD-BYE-
IT'S TIME TO SAY GOOD NIGHT-
WOW-CAN THAT WOMAN TALK- AND I DON'T EVEN KNOW WHERE WE HAVE BEEN-MY-WHAT A WOMAN-DID YOU EVER HEAR ANYONE TALK SO MUCH?
SHE WAS GOING TO SHOW US THE SIGHTS-SHE'S THE ONLY SIGHT I SAW-
SHE THINKS SHE'S A SOCIAL LEADER-DID YOU NOTICE THAT HORRID HAT ON HER? I DON'T THINK SHE EVEN KNOWS ANY PROMINENT PEOPLE-I'VE HEARD ABOUT HER HUSBAND-DID YOU NOTICE THAT MAKE-UP SHE HAD ON? AND HER LARGE FEET? MY-HER DRESS WAS SIMPLY VULGAR-

THE GUMPS—Danger Ahead. By Gus Edson

I'VE ALWAYS BELIEVED THAT THE MOST IMPORTANT RULE FOR GOOD HEALTH AND LONG LIFE WAS TO KEEP MY NOSE OUTTA OTHER FOLKS' AFFAIRS, BUT THERE'S ONE QUESTION I'D LIKE TO ASK YOU, STRANGER
FIRE AWAY, FELLER-MY LIFE'S AN OPEN BOOK-
5-25

WHEN I GAVE YOU A LIFT, I ASKED YOU WHERE YOU WAS HEADING-YOU SAID, "ANYWHERE, JUST SO IT'S AWAY FROM HERE"-YOU AIN'T DUCKING THE LAW, ARE YOU?
NO-NOTHING THAT SIMPLE-LIFE IS INDEED A BITTER PILL-AND I'M THE SADDEST ITEM ON IT'S LEDGER OF DESPAIR-
I CAN'T LICK DESTINY, SO I'M TRYING TO RUN AWAY FROM IT-THE BLACKEST INK OF FATE WAS SURE MY LOT-WHEN SHE WROTE MY NAME, SHE MADE A BLOT-BOILING THAT DOWN TO MY LINGO, CHUM, I MAKE IT OUT THAT YOU'RE HAVING HEART TROUBLE-I'M IN THE SAME BOAT-PUT 'ER THERE!
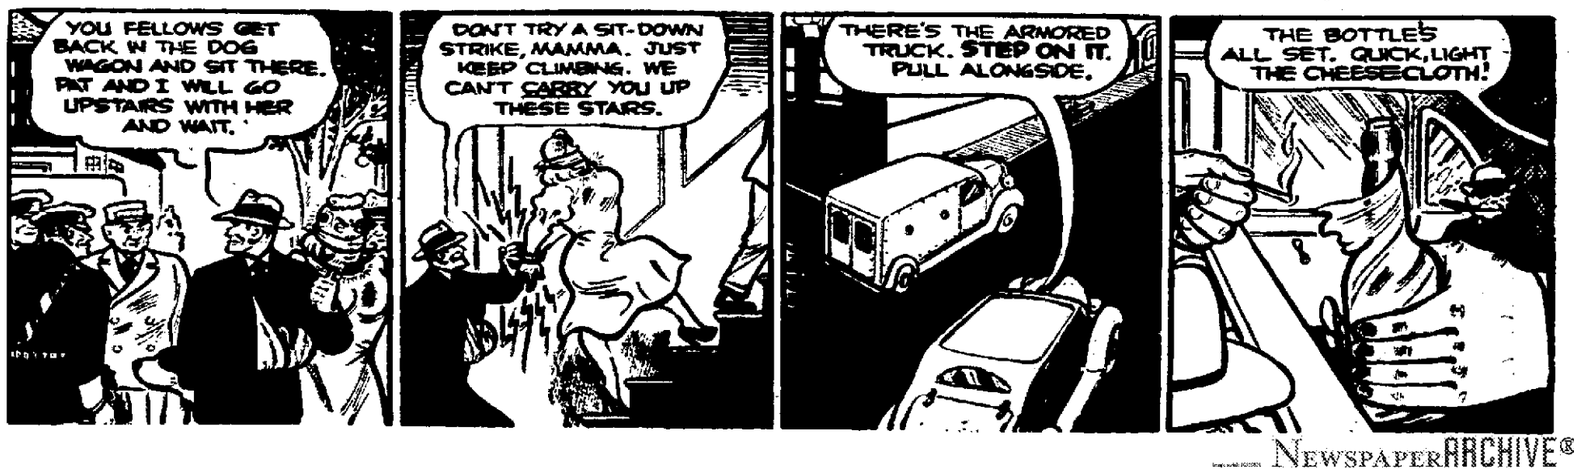
FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE— LOOK OUT!

DICK TRACY—Going Up. —By CHESTER GOULD



YOU FELLOWS GET BACK IN THE DOG WAGON AND SIT THERE. PAT AND I WILL GO UPSTAIRS WITH HER AND WAIT.
DON'T TRY A SIT-DOWN STRIKE, MAMMA. JUST KEEP CLIMBING. WE CAN'T CARRY YOU UP THESE STAIRS.
THERE'S THE ARMORED TRUCK. STEP ON IT. PULL ALONGSIDE.

TILLIE THE TOILER

MUMSY-GLENNY'S GETTING TOO SERIOUS ABOUT ME-WON'T YOU TALK TO HIM AND TELL HIM HE'S TOO YOUNG FOR ME?
WILL I? I DON'T THINK MUCH OF THAT HALF-BAKED KID, ANYWAY
IS THIS YOUR BRIDAL PICTURE MRS. JONES?
YES, GLENNY-THAT'S TILLIE'S PA AND I, THE DAY WE WERE MARRIED
OH, DEAR-DAD LOOKED LIKE A 15-YEAR OLD KID IN THAT PICTURE
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

GEE, MR. JONES DOESN'T LOOK AS IF HE WAS MUCH OLDER THAN I AM, WHEN HE WAS MARRIED
HE WAS, THOUGH, GLENNY
MUMSY'LL MAKE THINGS LOOK BETTER
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
HE WAS YOUNGER THAN YOU, THOUGH, WASN'T HE?
WELL, YES, BUT NOT AS MUCH AS HE LOOKS
THAT'S SOME BETTER
HE LOOKS FIVE OR SIX YEARS -YOUNGER, BU... AS ...Y
GOODNESS-THAT'S JUST THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN GLENNY'S AGE AND MINE
Blindboom, H G Museum
RUSS STOVER
IT DIDN'T BOTHER YOU BECAUSE HE WAS SO MUCH YOUNGER THAN YOU WERE, DID IT?
NO, IT DIDN'T
IF I COULD JUST CATCH HER EYE I MIGHT STOP HER FROM THAT LINE
I GUESS SHE CAN READ THIS LOOK I'M GIVING HER
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
NO-ER-WELL, WHAT-ER-BOTHERED ME, WAS THAT I WAS SO MUCH OLDER THAN HE BOY-WAS THAT A LAME ONE!
RUSS STOVER
BUT YOU WERE HAPPY, EVEN IF YOU WERE OLDER THAN MR. JONES, WEREN'T YOU?
WELL, YES, GLENNY, WE WERE
OH, DEAR-I'VE GOT TO CHANGE THE SUBJECT BEFORE ANY-THING WORSE IS SAID
I'M SURE MR. JONES WAS A VERY FINE MAN
WAS?
Copr. 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
I'M SORRY, ER-
OH, GLENNY, DID YOU HAVE TO MAKE MOTHER CRY?
SNIFF-SNIFF
RUSS STOVER
I DIDN'T MEAN TO UPSET HER-I JUST SAID I WAS SURE YOUR FATHER WAS A VERY NICE MAN
BUT YOU USED THE PAST TENSE-HE'S ALIVE
BUT WE DON'T KNOW THAT HE IS-WE HAVEN'T HEARD FROM HIM IN MONTHS-SNIFF SNIFF
THERE-THERE, MRS. JONES-I'LL BE MORE CAREFUL-I'LL NEVER MAKE YOU CRY AGAIN
THAT'S ALL RIGHT, GLENNY-YOU'RE A SWEET BOY
NOW WHAT HAVE YOU SAID? YOU HAVE MADE HER CRY AGAIN
SNIFF SNIFF
RUSS STOVER
GLENNY, YOU'RE SO TACTLESS YOU'VE UPSET MA ALL OVER AGAIN SOMEHOW-WELL, YOU AREN'T WELCOME AROUND HERE ANY MORE-DON'T COME BACK
GEE
OH, YOU POOR MUMSY-TELL ME WHAT IT WAS THAT UPSET YOU
SNIFF-SNIFF
OH, TILLIE-THAT GLENNY-I DID SO WANT A SON AND I NEVER HAD ONE-IF I HAD, HE MIGHT HAVE BEEN JUST GLENNY'S AGE NOW-I'D JUST LIKE TO TAKE THAT BOY AND MOTHER HIM
GOOD GRIEF, YOU'LL BE WANTING A SON-IN-LAW NEXT

NO, ANNIE—I'M NOT GONNA BOTHER McETT—AS A GENERAL MANAGER—HE'S A TOP HAND—GETS MORE WORK DONE IN AN HOUR THAN I COULD IN A WEEK
GENERAL MANAGER
G'WAN, YOU'RE JUST FOOLIN' ME—MR. McETT IS A NICE MAN—AN' I GUESS HE'S TERRIBLE SMART—BUT THERE AIN'T NOBODY SMARTER'N YOU ARE
IT ISN'T A CASE OF BEIN' SMART, YOUNGSTER—IT'S JUST A CASE OF KNOWIN' YOUR BUSINESS—IF YOU WANTED A PAIR OF SHOES—YOU WOULDN'T HIRE A SMART COWBOY OR A CLEVER CARPENTER TO MAKE 'EM FOR YOU—
DARRELL McCLURE
IF I DO SAY IT, MYSELF—I WASN'T NOBODY'S FOOL WHEN IT CAME TO HARD-ROCK MINING—BUT ARTESIAN WELLS AN' SUCH IS McETT'S GAME—MY GAME'S GOLD MINING—AN' A SMART MOLE DON'T TRY TO TEACH AN EAGLE HOW TO FLY!!
MUST BE NIGH TIME FOR SCHOOL TO LET OUT—THERE GOES ANNIE ROONEY'S WATCH DOG
WHATTA YA MEAN, "WATCH" DOG?
I FIGGER HE MUST HAVE A WRIST-WATCH ON EVERY PAW—OR MEBBE HE SWALLERED AN HOUR-GLASS—EVERY DAY I SET HERE A-FIGGERIN' IS HE A PLAIN CANNIE CRITTER OR A CUCKOO CLOCK—
LOOK! HERE COMES THE YOUNGSTERS A-RUSHIN' OUTTA THE SCHOOLHOUSE—AN' THAT DOG ARRIVED RIGHT ON SCHEDULE LIKE A FAST MAIL TRAIN
HI, ZERO—I KIN TELL BY THE WAY YOUR TAIL WAGS YOU'RE GLAD ALL OVER—AN I'M GLAD TOO, 'CAUSE MR HAPPY AIN'T SICK NO MORE—AN' TODAY I DID ALL MY LESSONS SWELL!
WOW WOW WARP

AS OWNER OF THE K ABNER KLUGGS REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT COMPANY—I THOUGHT YOU AND I COULD ENTER INTO SOME ARRANGEMENT THAT WOULD BE OF MUTUAL PROFIT—I—
SORRY, MR. KLUGGS—ANY PROPOSITION YOU MAY HAVE WITH THE HAPPY ROAD ARTESIAN WELL CORPORATION MUST BE PUT ON PAPER FOR EXAMINATION AND APPROVAL OF THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF DIRECTORS!
BULLY FOR YOU, LAD—SO YOU SPOTTED KLUGGS FOR A POLECAT THE MINUTE YOU SET YOUR PEEPERS ON HIM!?! I KNEW BY YOUR GET-UP NO TIN-HORN COULD EVER FOOL YOU WITH A SALTED MINE
THANK YOU, SIR—I'LL KEEP MY EYES OPEN AND MY MOUTH SHUT—
IF THAT SIDE-WINDER BOTHERS YOU AGAIN—TELL THE PORTER TO SWEEP HIM OUT WITH THE REST OF THE RUBBISH!
